CHRISTENDOM PLANS HOLY DAY

Old Santa Had Trouble Getting Start This Morning, But He's On His Way

NORTH POLE (P) — Well, children, Santa Claus is on his way to your house. He has your address in his pocket.

He and his eight reindeer took off from a snowy runway just at twilight. And right this minute they are zooming through the skies with your Christmas presents faster. . . faster. . . and faster.

There was a lot of excitement at the North Pole this morning. Here's what happened:

The eight reindeer trotted gayly out of their hangar at dawn and frisked in their harness as Mrs. Santa Claus tied tinkly jingle bells to their antlers.

"Hold still, you little reindeer," said Mrs. Santa. "Why don't you act more like a Christmas tree? You don't see a Christmas tree jumping around while it is being decorated, do you?"

A hundred little elves then tied a rope to Santa Claus' big red sleigh and hauled it from the hangar. A hundred other elves began piling the sleigh full of presents for all the boys and girls in the whole world.

"I never saw so many presents," said Santa, shaking his head. "More children every year. I don't know whether my old sled will hold them all this year."

And then it happened—yes, right at that moment. Cre-e-e-ek, cre-a-a-ack! One runner broke, and the big sleigh sagged to one side, spilling Christmas gifts into the snow. "Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" said Santa Claus. "What a time for my sleigh to break down. What'll I do?"

"It certainly would be terrible if all the children in the world woke up tomorrow and found you hadn't been able to bring them their presents," agreed Mrs. Santa.

Just then a big weather observation plane from the U. S. Air Force flew over. It circled and landed on Santa Claus' private runway, and the pilot stepped out.

"Are you in any trouble, sir?" he asked.

Santa pointed at the broken runner on his big sleigh.

The Air Force pilot looked at it and smiled. "Oh, that isn't such a disaster, sir," he said. "Why don't you let us lend you a modern jet bomber, and you can deliver your presents in it. After all, that sleigh is rather old-fashioned, and your reindeer are probably getting old and slow and could use a rest this year."

Santa hesitated. He walked over and patted each reindeer.

"What do you think?" he asked. "Do you want to stay home and rest this year?"

The reindeer shook their heads, and big tears rolled out of their brown eyes. They loved their job of pulling the big old-fashioned sleigh.

Grandpa Ike To Trim Yule Tree Tonight

NEW YORK (P) — Like many another grandfather, President-elect Eisenhower will help trim a Christmas tree tonight. It is being put up for the children of the President-elect's son John, an Army major in Korea.

The children—Dwight David, 4; Barbara Anne, 3, and Susan, 11 months—arrived with their mother Tuesday at the general's Columbia University home on Morningside Heights. They live in Highland Falls, N. Y., near West Point.

Also on hand for the holiday will be Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud of Denver, Colo.

The Christmas dinner menu arranged by Mrs. Eisenhower calls for turkey with oyster dressing, mashed potatoes and sweet potatoes, creamed onions, turnips and plum pudding.

The general did most of his Christmas shopping in Hawaii two weeks ago on the way home from his inspection of Korea.

Hitchhiker Gets Into Wrong Auto

HILLSBORO (P) — Elmer Barnes of Hillsboro was in jail today because he hitchhiked a ride in the wrong car.

The car was driven by Highland County Sheriff E. F. Gustin, who recognized him as a walk-away from the Chillicothe jail Dec. 8.

sleigh through the skies each Christmas. They looked forward to the trip all year long.

"No, thank you, I don't want your jet bomber," Santa Claus told the airplane pilot. "We'll make it in the old-fashioned way. I've never disappointed the children yet, and I won't now."

He called for his favorite blacksmith, a grimy elf named Mr. Forge, and asked him if he could fix the sleigh.

"I can fix anything," said Mr. Forge. "I can even fix a television set."

"But what will you use to make a new runner for my sleigh?" asked Santa.

"An icicle, of course," said Mr. Forge, impatiently. "What else?"

So a dozen elves climbed up to the North Pole and knocked off the biggest icicle they could find. Just before twilight after the icicle had been fixed so it wouldn't melt, Mr. Forge firmly nailed it to the sleigh with a silver hammer. Then the rest of the presents were piled on.

There was hardly room in the seat for Santa Claus himself. "Ho, ho, ho! Here we go!" he cried. "Ho, ho, ho! Here we go!"

As the little reindeer leaned against their harness and the sleigh began to move, the U. S. Air Force plane took off on the roadway ahead of them. That made the little reindeer angry.

"Old and slow are we?" snorted Donner to Blitzen. "Let's show that airplane our heels."

And that is just what they did. Faster and faster their little hooves twinkled in the clear frosty air, and soon they overtook the big lumbering airplane and passed it, jingling their bells and laughing.

Waving goodbye to the airplane, the merry old saint in the driver's seat laughed, too, until the tears ran down into his long white beard. "You can't beat Santa Claus," he said, "so you might as well quit trying."

And the fine old-fashioned sleigh sped on through the skies, bringing a present for you. . . and you. . . and you. . . and you.

News Briefs

COLUMBUS (P) — Ohio State University mourned today the death of Dr. George Washington Rightmire, 84, who served as OSU president from 1926 to 1938, the first alumnus to head the institution. He died Tuesday.

NEW YORK (P) — The Ohio Valley Electric Corp. has ordered 35 transformers of 330,000 volt capacity to supplement power needed for the atomic energy plant to be built in Pike County in Southern Ohio. The total order will cost 12 million dollars.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (P) — Alvin Robert Rogers, who crossed the Pacific Ocean in a 25-foot ketch five years ago, now plans to sail around the world in an 18-foot outboard motorboat.

LONDON (P) — A young man strolled into a Mayfair furrier's shop Tuesday, swept a $4,000 mink coat into his arms and escaped on a bicycle.

CHICAGO (P) — The Brodie Siamese twins, their condition still critical, began their seventh day of separate existence today.

SEOUL (P) — The Distinguished Service Cross, the second highest U. S. award for bravery, has been awarded to Pvt. Melton Johnson of Massillon, Ohio, who battled the Reds in Korea until he died of hand grenade wounds.

AKRON (P) — Postal inspectors held $3,200 worth of Christmas gifts today as evidence against salesman John F. Winter, 40. They said he bought them all with phony checks sent to mail order houses.

HAGUE, Netherlands (P) — The Dutch last night arrested the Netherlands correspondent of the Soviet news agency Tass as a suspected spy.

HOLLYWOOD (P) — John Barrymore Jr., 22, son of the late actor, is honeymooning with actress Cara Williams, 24, this Christmas Eve.

'Modern' Brutus Uses Tommygun

LOWESTOFT, England (P) — A jazzed-up version of the tragedy of Julius Caesar rocked this small East Coast town today—Brutus killed Caesar with a tommygun in a school dramatization of Shakespeare's famous play.

The town's education committee demanded an immediate inquiry as the bewildered school headmaster, P. W. Hartop, explained: "Our idea was to produce this great play in modern setting. We adhered strictly to its theme that violence does not pay. After all, the daggers used in the original form can be every bit as offensive as tommyguns."

No Deliveries On Christmas

Circleville milkmen will not take the chance of interfering with Santa's visits in the city early Christmas morning.

Local dairies report their milkmen will not make deliveries on Christmas Day and the dairy plants are to be closed down for the holiday.

WHEREVER THERE ARE MEN of good will there's a Christmas spirit, even at the battle front in Korea, where Cpl. Blonda Dixon of Parkersburg, W. Va., is shown putting finishing touches to a small tree for men of the U. S. 5th Marines 1st battalion rifle platoon. Cards and bits of paper make up the ornaments. Beneath the tree are presents sent by staff of the Kiplinger Newsletter.

Township Fire Pact Talk Fails; Walkout Averted

Eight of Pickaway County's townships Tuesday night started to walk out on the city of Circleville during an argument over the way local fire protection costs are divided, but both sides finally agreed to withhold "final decisions" until the next meeting of City Council Jan. 6.

The explosive question, admittedly one that could "hurt both sides" if agreement isn't reached, was discussed at a meeting between City Council and spokesmen for the Rural Township Fire Association.

Under a contract between the city and the Association, Circleville firefighters respond to fires outside the city with a truck paid for by the Association.

The present controversy developed through a tangle over renewal of the contract and the city's request for a readjustment of costs. Currently, the city is paid $14 for each fire call answered in the townships.

"Only for the sake of discussion and not as a rigid figure," the city, through Councilman Richard Penn, suggested the $14 be boosted to $40 a run.

A DELEGATION of nine members of the Association registered vigorous opposition to the proposal and, at first, moved to walk out of the meeting. Later, however, they agreed to wait until City Council meets next month. The rural fire fighters stood firm on their demand that the present arrangement be continued "or else."

The "or else" alternative they repeatedly warned would mean they would take their township truck out of the Circleville fire station and set up their own fire house. Spokesmen for the association said they could keep their truck in Pickaway County Garage "rent free" if they said "there would always be a man on duty at the garage" if the arrangement became necessary, and added they would have the use of the garage telephone.

Harry L. Melvin of Muhlenberg Township, president of the Association, said his group would be willing to sign a contract identical with one recently signed, but which later was declared invalid by the city. But Melvin warned the $14 rate must not be increased.

"We're not coming back to your Council meeting," he reminded the councilmen. "We've made an offer and you can take it or leave it."

Early in the session, which appeared on the verge of breaking up several times, Melvin declared "we've brought our overalls with us" and said his group was ready to drive away the township truck without further debate.

Later, refusing to yield to arguments advanced by the councilmen, Melvin arose, put on his hat and prepared to walk out of City Council chambers with several of his men.

Mediators prevailed, however, and the discussion continued until the temporary agreement was reached.

Korean Kids On Isle Get Candy Treats

TOKYO (P) — A U. S. Air Force C47 today dropped 100 pounds of candy bars by parachute to youngsters on a tiny island off the Korean coast.

"Merry Christmas from the Kyushu Gypsies" was written in Korean on each box.

The transport plane flies a supply run between Kyushu, Japan, and Korea.

"We always fly low over this one tiny island," said Lt. Don Davis of Natchez, Miss., the pilot.

"We see the kids come out and wave at us, and we rock our wings in return."

So the crew began collecting candy bars. They decided to deliver them Christmas Eve.

"We circled the island twice and attracted plenty of attention because we'd never done this before," said Lt. Edward H. Osmon of Akron, co-pilot.

"Then we heaved out the parachute container and watched the parachute drift down to the waiting kids. It landed near the village, so we know they got their Christmas presents in good shape."

WASHINGTON (P) — The FBI has been ordered by Atty. Gen. McGranery to move into the investigation of the New York waterfront, pictured in sworn testimony before the New York State Crime Commission as the focus of gangster terrorism.

Commission witnesses have described the waterfront as the locale of widespread bribery, extortion, shakedowns and strong arm tactics. McGranery announced last Tuesday that he was directing the FBI to undertake a federal investigation immediately.

"The Department of Justice," he said, "which has been watching the New York waterfront situation for months, now has sufficient evidence of federal law violations to warrant a full-scale investigation."

The State Crime Commission has called the situation it spotlighted on the waterfront "a stench in the nostrils of the community." The commission has no power to punish wrongdoers.

Its aim in the waterfront probe has been to seek background on dock rackets which are bleeding an estimated $350 million annually from New York City's $7 billion a year shipping industry.

White Christmas Not Sighted Here

CHICAGO (P) — It looks like a White Christmas for only some parts of the country.

The U. S. Weather Bureau here said no heavy snowfalls appeared in prospect for Christmas, but light falls and flurries were probable for many areas.

Forecasters said there is very little snow east of the Mississippi except in Northern New York and in sections of New England. But there is a blanket of white over wide areas from Kansas northwestward into Montana and North Dakota and northeastward from Kansas into Michigan. There also was snow in the Rocky Mountains.

General Clark Has Faith In Yule Spirit

TOKYO (P) — Gen. Mark W. Clark told troops of his United Nations Command today that the faith expressed in the Christmas spirit "will bring us to our goal."

The UN commander's Christmas message said: "The spirit of Christmas is an expression of hope that has existed for nearly two thousand years—the hope of peace on earth and good will toward men."

"Although the world has passed through many dark and critical times these past two thousand years, it is man's belief, however dark the hour may seem, that eventually the light of fellowship will show the way of peace on earth."

"This hope, through the centuries, has kept alive the promise of a world from which hatreds will be banished. The faith expressed in the spirit of Christmas, which has helped us and given us fortitude, will bring us to our goal."

"To all of you, this Christmas, I extend my warmest greetings and earnest hopes for the bright days to come."

$7,200 Pinned To Underclothes

CLEVELAND (P) — The $7,200 life savings of a 52-year-old widow were found pinned to her underclothing Tuesday night after she was struck by the car of a hit-skip motorist.

Police said the woman, Mrs. Ann Nally, apparently always carried the money with her. It was counted in her presence at the hospital and then turned over to a relative for safekeeping. Mrs. Nally suffered two broken legs in the accident.

Millions Raise Prayers Of Thanks, Hope

Solemn Ceremonies To Commemorate Birth Of 'Prince Of Peace'

By The Associated Press
Christians turned from the cares and sorrows of a troubled, strife-racked world today to begin the happy yet solemn ceremonies commemorating the birth of Him who preached the gifts of peace and love to all mankind.

As the last-minute rush for presents and festive goodies died away, millions of faithful lifted their hearts in Christmas Eve prayers of thanks and hope, and their voices in carols of joy.

Churches throughout Christendom threw open their doors to welcome all to traditional Christmas Eve ceremonies. In Bethlehem of Judea, a special Catholic midnight mass beginning in the Chapel of St. Catherine will end in the Grotto of the Nativity, on the spot designated by His followers as the birthplace of Christ nearly 2,000 years ago.

At the same time a Protestant service will be held on nearby terraced slopes that mark the traditional spot where angels announced the birth of Christ to shepherds watching their flocks by night.

HUNDREDS OF pilgrims have arrived in the Holy Land to worship at the shrines connected with the birth of Christ. As in past Christmas times, the heavy border guards between Jordan and Israel, still technically at war, will step aside to permit passage to the holy places.

Pope Pius XII broadcast his annual Christmas message of peace this morning. It was beamed around the world in 23 languages. The pontiff's Christmas Eve mass also was to be aired by the Vatican radio at 5:40 p. m. EST.

More than an hour earlier, President Truman was to deliver his last official Christmas message to the nation. He was to speak at 4:30 p. m. EST, at the 20th annual lighting of the Living Christmas Tree of the White House grounds.

Other chiefs of state and rulers prepared special messages. Queen Elizabeth II will broadcast her first as Britain's reigning monarch to the world-wide British Commonwealth and empire at 10:03 a. m. EST, Thursday.

As Americans at home rushed their last preparations for the season, their thoughts went out to the thousands of fighting men spending Christmas in troubled spots around the world—Korea, Germany, Austria, Japan and other lands threatened by tyranny.

ALL THESE, however, will have their celebrations too. There will be packages from home and special Christmas dinners. And American troops the world over have chipped in to buy toys and food for

Morse Tapped To Be Under Ag Secretary

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (P) — President-elect Eisenhower today chose True D. Morse of St. Louis, a Republican who was a Democrat until about 20 years ago, for the job of under secretary of agriculture in the new administration.

Morse, 56-year-old board chairman of a farm management service and editor of a farm publication, will serve as top aide to Ezra Taft Benson of Salt Lake City, secretary of agriculture-designate.

Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said Benson recommended Morse, who was born on a Missouri farm. The job pays $17,500 a year.

Morse is chairman of the board of Doane Agricultural Service of St. Louis, the oldest and largest farm management appraisal and farm research service in the country. He has been editor of the Doane Agriculture Digest.

He is vice president of the American Farm Economists Association and a past president of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers.

He is a member of the Christian (Disciples of Christ) church. He is president of his church in St. Louis and has a long record of church work there.

Township Fire Pact Talk Fails

the meeting roamed over a wide variety of fire protection details.

Councilman Ray Cook, presiding in the absence of Council President Ben Gordon, opened the discussion with an outline of what the city wants in the way of rate readjustment. He also explained why a recent one-year contract signed with the Association by Safety Director C. O. Leist is invalid "since the Safety Director wasn't authorized to take such action" at that time.

Melvin, a few minutes later, opened the Association's side of the argument, warning that Circleville would have to buy a new fire truck for the city if the township truck is removed and reminding the councilmen the township truck in the city fire house reduces the community's fire insurance rates.

Melvin at first pressed for a final decision on the issue during the meeting, but later agreed to wait when Penn and others explained it wasn't a regular Council meeting.

In place of the one-year contract Leist has already signed, Councilman George Crites and others urged the Association to accept a four-month contract while a revision of the $14 rate could be studied. The Association flatly refused to do this.

In urging this approach to the problem, Crites said the city in 1952 has paid about $28,500 to operate the city fire branch and said the city feels it isn't getting enough out of the setup with the eight townships covered by the association.

"We'd like you to raise the ante a little," he said.

CRITES AGREED the city would have to obtain another fire truck if the association took the one it owns. On the question of higher fire insurance rates for Circleville, he added the municipality "will probably have to face that matter before long anyway."

His reference presumably was to the fact that the current rates were set when Circleville's fire equipment was considered up to date—and that the rates now charged could no longer be justified here without new equipment.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said, in reply to a query by Cook, that a truck's value as a rate factor "goes way down" after the vehicle is 10 years old. City firemen here have stated none of the equipment on hand is "up to par alongside the fire insurance rates."

Suggesting that some use might be made of volunteer firemen in solving the city-Association disagreement, Councilman Harold Clifton referred to a recent letter by the State Inspection Bureau which touched on the possibility of higher rates and the number of city fire personnel.

Clifton said he had not been aware of some of the details. He was assured by other councilmen and Chief Wise that the facts were correct.

It was shortly after this stage that Melvin rose from his seat and said:

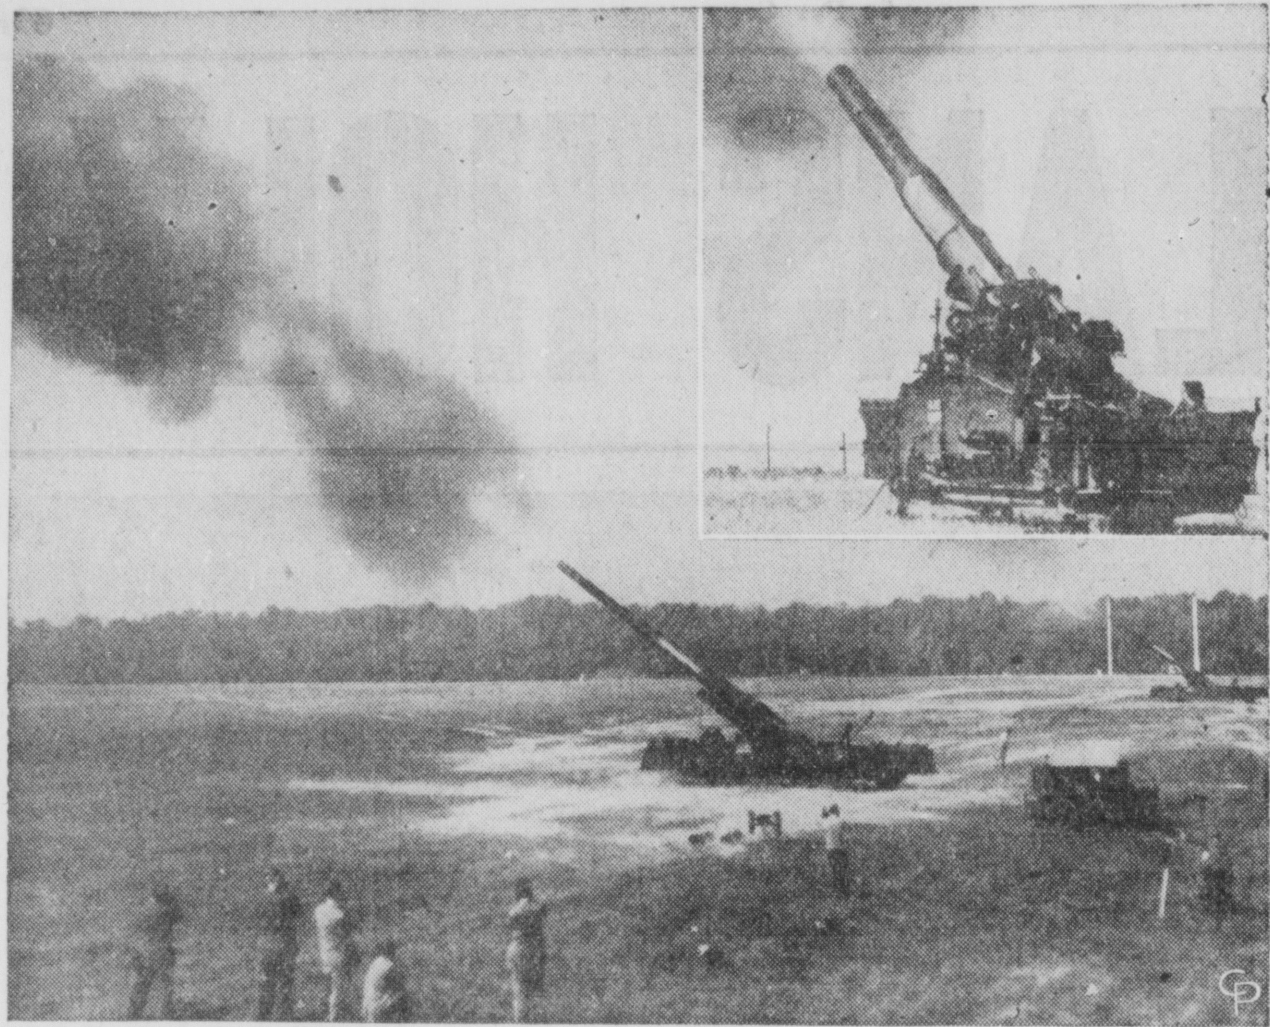

"Well, gentlemen. Some of these (Association) boys are in a hurry. We want to know your decision."

In later discussion it was brought out the Association, over a 12-month period, has paid the city a total of $700 for helping fight 50 fires in the townships. In addition to that amount, Melvin said the association paid $352 insurance on its township truck.

A LISTING produced by Councilman Joe Brink showed only about eight of the 50 calls were indicated as "building fires." Other councilmen pointed out, however, that a number of the "grassfires" listed may have also threatened farm structures.

Melvin at one time said the townships have to pay $14 every time a fire breaks out at the city dump—

A-Gun, Big Bertha's New 'Daughter,' Has Won Love of U. S. Artillerymen

The atomic "Big Bertha" fires a practice shot at Aberdeen Proving Grounds. Note size of gun compared to men in foreground. In upper right is a closer view of the gun.

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Correspondent
ABERDEEN, Md. — "Big Bertha's" progeny is doing very well, thank you!

All you have to see to believe that there is a new lease on life for the long line of big guns that stretches from the Battle of Crecy in 1326, through the dramatic interlude of the 76-mile shelling of Paris by the Germans in 1918, is to witness the jubilation here of the artillerymen over their brand new 280-mm. mobile atomic gun.

It is their answer to "all that moonshining" of Air Force advocates who sometimes seem to imply that they think the field gun is as dead in modern warfare as the proverbial dodo. And up-to-the-minute developments in the Korean war, accenting the role of the artillery, lend support to the big gun enthusiasts.

The Russians, always great hands at artillery, have schooled their Chinese Communist pupils in the techniques which made their field weapons such a big factor in the halting of the Germans before Moscow and elsewhere on the Eastern Front in World War II.

IT USED to be an unusual day in Korea when the Communists fired 500 rounds of artillery. Lately in the terrific battles around Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge, the Chinese rolled up 200 field pieces and shelled Allied lines with 23,000 rounds a day.

Then the dramatic duel between Communists and United Nations

artillerymen started, and in three days the Kumhwa valley shuddered under barrages that reminded veteran infantry officers of comparable scenes in both World Wars I and II.

On a Tuesday the Chinese sent over that record 23,000 rounds. One day later the volume of fire was cut by Allied counter blasting to only 11,000 rounds, and on Thursday it dropped to 4,000. The front was quiet on Friday. "That was the work of the artillery; no air forces achievement," proudly declared the handlers of the big guns. "Wait 'til we get the new 280-mm. gun!"

OF COURSE, observers of the trends of Korean fighting point out that the ascendancy of the artillery there naturally coincides with the emergence of "a war of position."

The Germans used such a lull in 1918 to author the Big Bertha exploit, which still is classic in the saga of the artillery through the centuries.

On a quiet March 23, Parisians were startled when a shell exploded in the streets, as if from nowhere. True, the rumblings of the battle front 70 miles away could be heard in the metropolis when the wind was right, but no gun with such range was known to exist.

For 140 days "Big Bertha" made her weight felt. Enough shells were lobbed into Paris to kill 256 persons. The Allies tried to pooh-pooh it, but in retrospect the seriousness is not discounted.

Nor is the achievement of the Germans deprecated by artillery specialists. Big Bertha was one of several huge guns built at the Krupp munitions works, and nicknamed after Frau Bertha von Bohlen, head of the Krupp family.

THE GUN was 110 feet long, weighed 142 tons, and fired a 264-pound shell 76 miles with very poor accuracy. Firing occurred on every third day. By contrast, Uncle Sam's new artillery pride is much more supple, capable of great accuracy, highly mobile, but big enough to be in the same class.

A marvel of engineering, the new weapon weighs 42 tons, and hurls an 11-inch shell with pinpoint accuracy for 20 miles. The shells may be either convention or atomic.

Don't relegate such artillery solely to the old version of "a war of position," say artillerymen. Moved by two huge motor trucks, the gun can be set up and fired in 20 minutes, instead of three days. It has its own built-in recoil tracks.

The main part of the gun, weighing 1,600 pounds, is balanced on a single steel ball, and two men can move it around. Electricity and hydraulics power the tremendous piece, but it can be handled manually, too.

One thing about artillerymen: they love their guns, and you should see the affection building up among them for this remote and much younger cousin of Big Bertha!

Bowers To Seek District Title This Sunday

Robert Bowers, senior in Ashville High School and winner of the Pickaway County Prince of Peace contest, will compete for a gold medal award at 7 p. m. Sunday in a district contest to be held in the South Congregational church, Columbus. Bowers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Bowers of Ashville.

The contest is in its 28th year under the continuous sponsorship of the Ohio Council of Churches. The young people who will participate in the district have won bronze medals in their community contests and silver medals in their county contests.

These counties are represented in the district contest: Pickaway, Delaware, Madison, Licking, Clark and Union.

District winners from all over Ohio will go to Columbus on January 18 for the state semi-finals. Six winners in that elimination will compete for college scholarships and cash prizes.

The finals will be held at the Ohio Pastors' Convention, which meets January 26-29 in Columbus.

Bethlehem (Ky.) Lives Up To Name

BETHLEHEM, Ky. (P)—The little town of Bethlehem lives up to its name at Christmastime.

As usual, around 300 persons are expected to attend church services in the town that took its name from the birthplace of the Prince of Peace. Hardly more than that number live in or near the village, 36 miles northeast of Louisville.

"The people don't make too big a play on the name," according to the Rev. Delbert Butts, pastor of the Bethlehem Baptist Church, "but they are aware they have something to live up to."

needy children in lands that are their temporary homes.

In a Christmas message to his Eighth Army troops in Korea, Gen. James Van Fleet declared the Christmas star "still burns to lead us in our pursuit of peace on earth and good will towards men."

The Eighth Army chief exposed a well-nigh universal hope in the Western world when he told his men he hoped that the next Christmas would find them in their homes and peace restored.

The Chinese Communists even joined in the yuletide festivities on the Korean battlefield. A Red patrol decorated a Christmas tree on the snow-covered no mans land between Allied and Red lines.

Some of the crudely written banners on the tree wished Allied soldiers a merry Christmas but others added a wish for the "cold death" of Allied troops if the United Nations Command did not give in at the suspended armistice talks.

Not too much is known about Christmas plans in Communist countries. In Russia, Christmas is celebrated on Jan. 7 because the Russians use a different calendar.

In Russian-led Poland the Communists evidently are trying to discourage traditional Christmas celebrations. The authorities are sponsoring, as a counter attraction, New Year's Day festivities with lighted trees. They also are attempting to replace Father Christmas—as Santa is known in Poland—with the Russian "Grandfather Frost." This worthy distributes presents on Jan. 1.

Moonshine Hens To Provide Dinner

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (P)—Hamilton County officers destroyed a 2,000-gallon copper still Tuesday and confiscated enough chickens to provide Christmas dinner for county prisoners.

Sheriff Rex Richey said the big moonshining outfit was being operated in a chicken house and some chickens were being kept around "as a blind." He added: "The prisoners at county jail are going to have the biggest chicken dinner for Christmas they've ever had."

Radios To Carry Yule Greetings

ATLANTA (P)—Airwaves tonight will carry the Christmas greetings of a 22-year-old polio victim who was too ill to write cards to her friends in Kentucky this year.

Doris Whittaker will tape record her holiday messages and amateur radio operators have volunteered to transmit them by ham network to her hometown, Somerset, Ky. Miss Whittaker came here last summer to find a job. A week later she became ill and has been in Grady Hospital since.

Queen's Christmas Message Delayed

LONDON (P)—Queen Elizabeth's Christmas radio address, her first as sovereign, will begin Thursday three minutes later than usual—at 10:03 a. m. EST. It will be the first delay since the royal broadcasts started 20 years ago.

The Queen approved the change so that more than 1,000 overseas radio stations which will carry the address can be cued in to pick up the broadcast.

DEATHS And Funerals

HENRY KEARNS

Henry Floyd Kearns, 75, of Atlanta, died at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in his home following an illness of one year.

Mr. Kearns, a retired farmer who lived in the Atlanta community all of his life, was born Aug. 2, 1877, son of Benjamin and Sarah Speakman Kearns.

Surviving him is his widow, Jessie Kearns; two sons, Royal Kearns of Clarksburg and Benjamin Kearns of New Holland; a step-son, Arthur Kearns, of Cedarville; a brother, Nelson Kearns, of Chillicothe; and seven grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Friday in Atlanta Methodist church with the Rev. J. K. Price officiating. Burial will be in Hallsville cemetery by direction of Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland.

Friends may call in the residence after 4 p. m. Thursday.

Pony-Rider, 15, Fractures Leg In Accident

A 15-year-old Circleville lad suffered a fractured left leg late Tuesday when the pony he was riding was struck by an auto.

The accident happened at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday on Lovers Lane at an alley leading from Fairview Avenue.

Injured was Forrest Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Martin of Fairview avenue.

Officer John White said the lad and pony were struck by an auto operated by Ralph Henry, 46, of Circleville Route 3.

Henry said the pony was bucking into the path of his car and he was unable to stop in time.

Young Martin was treated in Berger hospital for the fractured leg and for lacerations and abrasions. Injury sustained by the pony was undetermined.

Royal Listeners Invite In Carolers

SANDRINGHAM, England (P)—Carol singers were chorusing merrily outside Sandringham House—the royal lodge—last night when a tall, handsome man stepped out into the cold air.

"Wouldn't you like to come in?" asked the Duke of Edinburgh. "It must be cold outside."

The 20 villagers from nearby Dersingham accepted with pleasure and continued their caroling in the drawing room. The listeners included Queen Elizabeth II, Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

The chubby old man with the sled and the deer
Had a delicate problem as Christmas drew near.
He had to find presents, the right ones, to carry
Down to the White House for Ike and for Harry.
The latter was leaving, his troubles all through,
But Ike faced more trouble than Ike ever knew.
So Santa Claus fiddled and fumbled and fussed
And dug down in his bag till his beard was all mussed.
For anyone else what he picked might be simple:
A drum for a boy; for a girl a deep dimple.
But Harry and Dwight needed special good care.
Since soon one would be in and one wouldn't be there.
But Ike is the heir to a national debt
Which he'd like to reduce but maybe can't yet.
The headaches he faces, while not a surprise,
All add up to money: the aid for allies.
The war in Korea, inflation, the fight
Against Communist tactics, unseen and in sight.
"They're tough," said old Santa.
"I wish I could see
A magician or two to put under his tree.
I know he could use an indebtedness chaser
"So maybe I'll give him a red ink eraser.
"For the unasked advice he'll be getting for free
"From people who think they know better than he,
"Some earmuffs might help, or a cave with no phone;
"And a cave would be handy when bricksbats are thrown.
"Since Ike, who is nimble and hale and still hearty,
"May wear himself out keeping peace in his party,
"I'll give him a hammer, without showing a bruise,
But the problem of Harry gave Santa a start:
Since the White House inhabitants seldom depart—
This was the first one in 24 years—
By declining to run, Mr. Claus was in tears.
Not because Harry was leaving, indeed,
But what sort of gifts do ex-presidents need?
He liked Harry fine, always had, always would,
A warm, friendly man, the kind that's called good.
But Harry was going, not much worse for wear,
Still coming Republicans out of his hair.
They criticized, clubbed him, found all kinds of fault:
An amazing example of verbal assault.
Old Santa thought twice while he tried to unravel
The problem of Harry: "Some rest and some travel
"Should do for a starter. And then? Now let's see.
"What would I want the most of if I could be he?
"A long life, of course, and a strong voice so loud
"I could make myself heard on the furthestmost cloud.
"I'd make the Republicans hear me. They'd learn
"How a roasting can make an effective slow burn."
But Santa knew Harry might also keep busy
Dashing off notes, when he got in a tizzy,
To critics of music and critics of Harry.
"I can give him," thought Santa, "a gift he can carry,
"Some envelopes, paper and stamps by the peck
"To notify those who are pains

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

SANTA CLAUS, chancing to look out the window of his North Pole office, suddenly gasps. "What's this? What's this?" he cries out. "Can that be Comet?—and Cupid?—and Dasher? Yes! My reindeer have come back!"

"BUT WAIT!" shouts the Good Saint. "Who is this leading them home? Why, my goodness! It's Eski, the little Eskimo child whose bare little Christmas tree last year became decorated with real stars from the sky!"

SANTA dashes with joy out to the Reindeer Corral and lifts Eski high into the air. "Thanks, Little Eski," says Santa, "for bringing my reindeer back! Now I can deliver the gifts for all good children in the world."

ESKI'S REWARD is to make the Big Trip with Santa. So tonight when Santa comes down your chimney to bring your gifts guess who will be holding his sturdy steeds for him? That's right, Eski! (The End)

Surveyors Said To Be Working On Route 23 Near City Limits

Reports that "something's stirring" beneath the strangely quiet surface of the bypass controversy were given new support Tuesday night when it was learned state highway department surveyors have been working recently just north of Circleville.

Surveyors were said to have been at work last week "just north of the city and all the way down to the corporation line" on Route 23.

The report fitted easily into an unexplained development a few days ago when a highways department worker carried away the aerial photo map being used here in preliminary action on the bypass proposal.

The worker, calling for the map at offices of City Solicitor George Gerhardt, said highways crews were "planning along Route 23 both north and south of the city."

He also added the department was "waiting to see what's decided on the bypass right here in Circleville."

THE IMPORTANT map, essential here in studies on a proposed change in the city's corporation line, was needed by "Mr. Ricketts," he said. Richard Ricketts is an official of the highways department's engineering branch.

He has taken a leading part in talks so far on the state's offer to re-route the main north-south highway here around the western side of Circleville.

Ricketts and other state spokesmen some time ago said they would wait to learn the reaction of property owners to the proposed change in the city limits, required under the state's offer.

Gerhardt has contacted a number of the property owners but only one definite reply to the plan has been received, he said. Container Corp. said it would oppose the bypass route as now drawn, since it would cross a section of the firm's storage yard.

Some of the other property owners have told Gerhardt they're still not satisfied the proposed route has been pinpointed sufficiently by the aerial photo map. And others have been silent altogether.

Strangely enough, it was learned some leaders on both sides in the controversy feel continued delay in decision is working in their behalf.

Residents favoring the bypass indicated belief the state or federal government, or both, will soon begin to exert added pressure here if the matter continues without change much longer. However, those urging the highway be kept on Court street apparently feel that continued delay will tend to discourage the whole bypass plan.

REPORTS of surveyors working along Route 23 near the northern city limits came as a confusing touch for speculation. When pressed some time ago for a definite answer here, state highways department engineers said they favored the bypass route to Court street.

However, the proposed bypass route swings away from the present highway at a point well above the city's northern limits.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

If you're one of the lucky girls who is going to a prep school or college weekend house party, be the kind of guest who rates a second invitation. How? Like this:

1. When you write to your date to accept his invitation ("I'd love to come"), add that you'd appreciate it if he'll let you know what's cooking for the weekend, so you'll bring the right clothes.
2. Wear a suit for travel. Pack all your formal finery for the big dance; a day-length dress and the shoes that go with it; an extra sweater and blouse, socks, comfortable low-heel shoes for daytime. Take a coat, scarf, etc. This gives you an outfit for every need, yet not too much luggage. Let your date know what time your train, plane or bus will arrive, so he can meet you.
3. Pay your fare both ways. After you arrive, all other expenses are his, because you are his guest from arrival to departure.
4. Follow house rules where you stay overnight. It's the girl who has fun without breaking rules who is invited again.
5. Be a good sport and join the fun, but be yourself. He likes you as you are and doesn't want you to smoke or drink or stay out after the campus deadline just because somebody else does.
6. Be sure to thank him afterward and tell him that it was fun. When you're back home, put it in writing—so he'll know you appreciated the big weekend.

Pope Raps Both Communism And Capitalism In Yule Talk

ROME (AP)—Pope Pius XII addressed his 14th annual Christmas plea for peace today to the world's "poor and oppressed" and criticized communism for its attack on Christianity and capitalism for not doing enough to improve man's economic lot.

The modern world, said the pope, faces two difficulties — a difficulty of economics and a difficulty of conscience.

The difficulty of conscience, he continued, is caused by a condemnation of the Christian faith, which has led to the torture of men. This was interpreted as a clear reference to communism and the persecution of the church in the countries communism has conquered.

Turning to economics, the pontiff said much has been done to try to solve the world's unemployment problem, but more must be done. These were his recommendations:

SUPERFLUOUS luxury expenditures should be reduced. Capitalists should put their money into use to aid suffering people rather than holding it in dead deposits. Where private enterprise is inadequate, governments should intervene with public works.

He expressed hope that he would see a reduction in what he described as the disproportionate levels of life between rich and poor individuals and rich and poor nations.

But the pontiff added the hope that this would not be brought about by mere mechanization, for "society is not a machine;" even in the economic field it is not a machine.

Voicing criticism of economic organizations on both "this side and that side" of the ocean—apparently the Communist and non-Communist worlds as well—the pope said industrialism has brought benefits to the people, but it now tends towards an impersonal development of man that tyrannizes the human spirit.

"The technicians of production and organization cannot by themselves create a world without misery," he declared.

Contrary to popular belief, bears are not particularly fond of honey although they often raid beehives to eat the young bees in the combs.

County Defense Bond Sales Low

Ohio purchases of E and H defense bonds during November showed the first decrease for 1952, compared to sales of E Bonds for the same month last year, and ended 13 consecutive month-by-month sales gains for the state, according to Judge William D. Radcliff, chairman of Pickaway County's defense bond committee.

Sales of E and H Bonds in Pickaway County last month were $43,326, and compare to E Bond sales of $52,041 for November, 1951.

The defense bond office in Columbus pointed out that sales of E Bonds reported during November, 1951, reached a two-and-a-half-month peak, because it marked the final accounting period of the first defense bond drive which was a national promotion with sales quotas. There was no all-out bond drive held during 1952.

Merrill L. Predmore, Ohio's director for the defense bonds division, praised the excellent volunteer effort put behind the state's bond program and emphasized the fact that Ohio sales of E and H bonds probably will show a net gain of over 30 million dollars compared to E Bond sales in 1951.

Actual dollar sales of Series E and H bonds in the state during November were $23.4 million, and compare to total purchases of E bonds only in the same month last year of $28.1 million.

CHRISTMAS

ON THIS CHRISTMAS day, with the world torn asunder by war and preparations for war, it might seem to be untimely to give thought to the hope for peace on earth. With human ingenuity devoted almost entirely to contriving weapons of death and destruction, it may appear to the unthinking to border on mockery to sing of good will to men.

Through all wars, and in spite of them, man's hope for peace has persisted. It is the essence of his faith in a Divinity, a faith which has shaped his ends throughout the centuries.

Take from him this hope for peace and man has little remaining to give momentum to his routine of living. Convinced that he could never live in an age of good will, man's zest for living would be lessened immeasurably.

Christmas is a season of mingled joy and sadness. The average human being is buoyed up by a sense of fellowship and at the same time dashed down by a feeling of irreparable loss. For a brief period we love others as ourselves and are unnaturally happy because, unfortunately, selfishness is the normal inclination of man.

During this time, every gift is a token of personal thought, of unselfish interest in the joy of others. We like to see the gleam in the eyes of the child and feel the hand clasp of the adult to whom we have extended good will.

For a few hours we renounce all the stupid enmities, the harshnesses and envies of human relationships and accept the unconquerable efficacy of good will. We grant ourselves a glimpse of Heaven and then slam the door on the splendid vision. For man, in the exercise of his free will, too frequently chooses the baser rather than the richer things.

Christmas vouchsafes us a tiny portion of the fullness of life if we but surrender ourselves to the spiritual teachings of the ages. That is the joy of the season.

On this Christmas day, then, be of good cheer. For peace will come again in a better day yet to be. It is man's heritage, bequeathed to him on that night of nights in Bethlehem, when the angels sang in joyous refrain:

Peace on earth, good will to men.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The holidays of all peoples are images of their nature. The Saturnalia of the decadent Romans expressed the materialism of a people who had once known the beauties of God's law, but had wandered into a world of physical excitement. The feast of the Maccabees of the Jews expresses the permanence of spirituality of this ancient people, who, no matter how materialism may master the many, always produces its minority of prophets and sages who love God.

Christmas cannot ever be a secular holiday. Christmas, in its material manifestation, may to some mean trees and tinsel, gifts and merchandise. This is only an external expression of a festival, often pagan, often without relationship to the inner soul of its civilization.

For Christmas presents the birthday of Jesus for remembrance—Jesus the rabbi, Jesus the prophet, Jesus the Christ, Jesus the only begotten son of God—depending upon the traditions of one's race. Such a birthday can only manifest itself in adoration of God. For whether one be Christian, Jew, or Moslem, it must be recognized that Jesus of Nazareth, in the land now called Israel, spoke God's word and it was carried to all the corners of the earth.

The spirit of the Old Testament lived in His words—the spirit, the soul, the character of the Torah and the prophets, of the sages and rabbis, of Moses and David, of Isaiah and Hillel.

But the words, of themselves, are never important, for words are only the symbols that men use to speak the thoughts of their minds and to approach, however haltingly, the spirit in their souls.

In the magnificent structure of human virtue, the beatitudes, Jesus hands down to man the whole tradition of the human effort to translate the meaning of God's revelation to man in language. It is with that revelation of the Natural Law that the Judaic-Christian civilization swept over Europe.

The Jews have never been a proselyting people. They associated their faith with themselves and lived within their own world and their own tradition. Paul, however, set out to speak the spirit of this civilization to all mankind and brought it into the declining and confused Roman Empire as a refreshing zephyr. He brought Jesus to Western Europe and arrested the decay which was returning a great people to barbarism. It was this Judaic-Christian concept of life which rescued Europe from paganism.

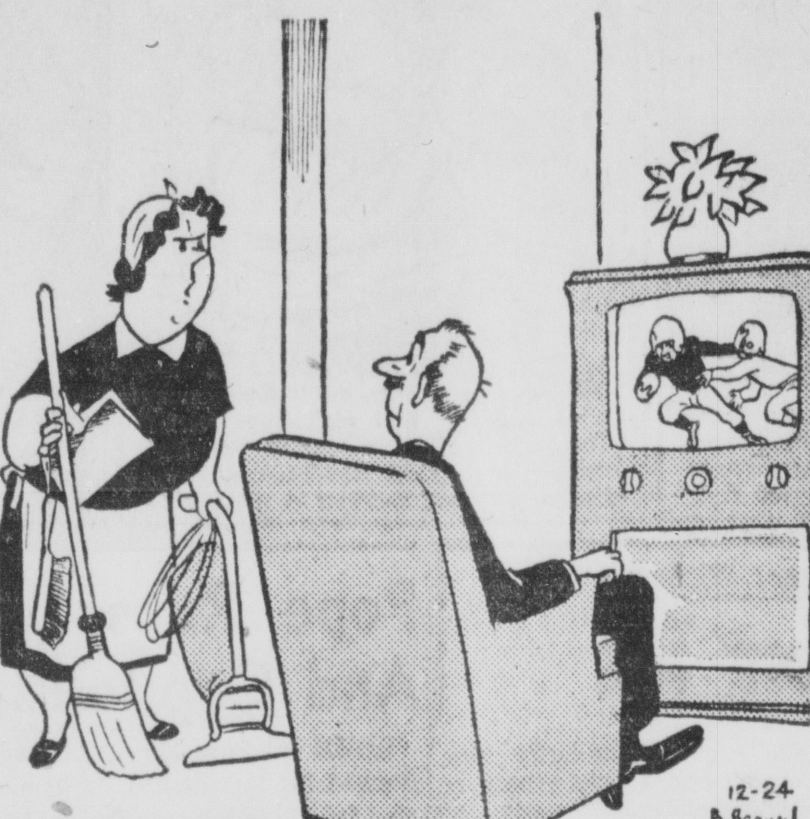

Christmas, then, is the anniversary not only of the birth of Jesus but of the resurrection of our civilization. It is in this spirit that all those who love God, Jew, Christian, Moslem, can pause to think, not in terms of material benefits or of festive gaiety, but in the deep mood of religious reverence.

All the religions whose roots are in Palestinian soil, reject a materialistic concept of man. They all hold that God gave not only life but the "Ruah Hakodesh"—the Holy Spirit to man. And it is this Holy Spirit which is immortal, for it is life.

In the beatitudes, Jesus does not in any place speak of the grandeur of material things; He does not tarnish His words with the meaningless tinsel of things that can be counted. On the contrary, He says:

A Disease of Women That Seems to Be on the Increase

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE womb is made of tissues that are capable of great change and growth, especially during pregnancy. In one disease of women, however, the type of tissue that lines the womb also starts to grow in other parts of the body. This tissue is known as the endometrium, and the disease in which it is misplaced is called endometriosis.

The misplaced tissue is most often found lying inside the abdomen, in the tissues around the womb, on the ovaries, or on the rectum or large intestine.

This disease is far more common than one would believe and seems to be on the increase, occurring most frequently in women between the ages of 31 and 40 years.

It is not cancerous, however, and there is no special danger that it will lead to cancer. The true cause for the disease is not known, although there are many plausible theories to explain it.

Many of the women with this condition have complained of severe pain during and after menstruation. Usually they had difficulty in becoming pregnant. Others, however, have borne children frequently, and in some cases this prevented the spread of the disease.

Endometriosis can also cause bleeding from the rectum and blood in the urine. Backache and rectal pain are also very common.

Surgery Most Successful

Hormones have been used in treating this disease over the years, but in most cases this treatment is not too successful. Usually surgery is the only treatment of any avail. During the operation all the tissue that contains this misplaced endometrium should be removed.

When a woman can bear children, however, the surgeon usually does not remove the organs needed for reproduction. Once the childbearing age is past, removal of all the organs of reproduction that have implanted tissue usually brings permanent relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

V. M. T.: What is an electroencephalograph used for?

Answer: The electroencephalograph is an instrument used for measuring brain waves. It is used to diagnose different types of brain disorders; also to localize certain brain tumors and to measure the amount of damage following brain injury. Sometimes it is employed to determine whether there has been an excessive intake of barbiturate drugs.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

EMILY filed in the morning with trivial tasks; and immediately after luncheon she did over her hair and manicured her nails and changed her dress. In spite of the current trend away from mourning, she had worn black for some time after Roger died, not because she wished to perpetuate an outworn custom, but because it had seemed to her the most natural and suitable thing to do and because it had been in harmony with her own mood. Gradually she had changed into soft grays and lavenders, colors again, and she chose a green dress which was especially becoming, and which she felt sure David would like. He had once told her that she looked like the personification of spring, when he had found her in her little garden, wearing a green dress.

The dress she put on now was not unlike the one she had worn that spring afternoon so long before.

It seemed long to Emily.

"Major Salomont, Mrs. Field."

She hastened forward, both hands outstretched in welcome, calling his name in a glad voice. She had expected that he would take her in his arms as soon as the doors closed behind the butler, but this time she was more than ready for the anticipated embrace.

Instead, David clasped her outstretched hands in his, firmly rather than carelessly, and regarded her with smiling approval without drawing her closer to him.

"Emily, how lovely you look! I never saw you when you were half so beautiful!"

"You look wonderful to me, David. But of course you would, anyhow."

"And of course you would, anyhow. But you really are a great deal more beautiful than when I left. And what a charming dress! . . . My imagination isn't playing me tricks this time, either, is it?"

"You mean about the dress?"

"Yes. It reminds me of one you were wearing the first afternoon I came to your garden on Joy Street, the one I told you made you seem like the embodiment of spring."

"I didn't think you'd remember. But I thought of that myself—the similarity, I mean."

"You haven't asked me to sit down yet, you know."

"Oh! I'm terribly sorry! Of course. . . I like this sofa, don't you? . . . Now start at the beginning and tell me everything."

She spoke with great cordiality, but with some confusion. All the time they had been standing, facing each other with clasped hands.

but at arm's length, she had been waiting, from one moment to the next, for him to fold her in a fond embrace, to tell her how much he loved her and to invite the response which would have been so immediate. It had made her happy to know that he thought she was beautiful, it was gratifying to find that he had remembered the other green dress and that he had noticed her diamonds; few men would have been so observing. But this did not fill her with rapture as the expected kisses and the murmured words of endearment would have done. Even the statement that he had come to see her, that all other meetings were secondary to this one, seemed to lack the ardor for which she had yearned. She felt both bewildered and frustrated, and she was not sure she had been able to conceal this, when she so belatedly invited David to be seated, after he himself had suggested it. Her feeling of bewilderment increased as he settled himself at one end of the sofa, with the obvious expectation that she would ensconce herself at the other.

"That's rather a large order, isn't it?" he inquired, picking up the thread of the conversation. "You know a good deal already, from my letters."

"Not nearly as much as I'd like to. Of course for a long while they were censored. And since then, they haven't contained much detail. . . . Naturally, I know they couldn't," she added hastily. "I realize you haven't had time to write long letters. Also, that there are lots of things it's easier and better to say than to write."

"Yes, there are. Those are the things I want to concentrate on now. . . . Is it all right if I smoke?"

"Of course I should have suggested that right away too. And I'm sorry I can't offer you a cigarette from your favorite cellophone box. It's in storage but I'm going to get it out almost immediately—that and a lot of my other things. I'll have it for you in a day or two."

She smiled, determined, now that she had recovered from the first shock of his unexpected behavior, to show no more confusion and, above all, to betray no surprise or disappointment. Of course there was some explanation, which would soon be forthcoming; he must have something on his mind so important that, until he had unburdened himself, he could not be in the mood for love-making. She looked at him confidently, waiting for him to go on.

"Don't bother about the box. I remember that, too, and it was a collector's item. But I can enjoy a cigarette just as much if I take it right out of my own case." "I don't wonder. It's a beauty." "Yes. It's a present. I've become rather attached to it." Instinctively, she put out her hand, supposing that he meant her to take it in order that she might inspect it more closely and admire it more discerningly. Instead, he replaced it in his pocket.

"Of course you realized it was a great blow to me when I found I wasn't going into Normandy over the beaches," he began. "But, as it did not fill her with rapture as the expected kisses and the murmured words of endearment would have done. Even the statement that he had come to see her, that all other meetings were secondary to this one, seemed to lack the ardor for which she had yearned. She felt both bewildered and frustrated, and she was not sure she had been able to conceal this, when she so belatedly invited David to be seated, after he himself had suggested it. Her feeling of bewilderment increased as he settled himself at one end of the sofa, with the obvious expectation that she would ensconce herself at the other."

"I know how you feel. And I think I know why you feel that way, too, David."

"Well, thank God for that. I hoped I wouldn't have to explain." "But you don't have to tell me about that, honestly you don't."

"Yes, I do. That's what I came here for."

"Why of course it isn't! You've come here because—"

She must not be the one to say it first. Until he had done so, she could not say. "You've come here because you love me and I love you, because there's no impediment any more to our love, because we're free to express it in every way." She waited for him to say this and instead, he said something else.

"I've come here to tell you that I saw Priscilla in Wiesbaden."

For a moment Emily found that, strangely enough, she could not seem to answer. When she did so, she hoped and believed that her voice sounded not only natural but casual.

"Why, of course you must have! You didn't mention it in your letters and, as far as I know, Priscilla didn't mention it in hers. She doesn't write to me, but she does write to Grandmamma, occasionally."

"I saw a good deal of Priscilla, Emily."

"Well, I'm very glad. I'm sure you must have found her good company. Priscilla's quite amusing, when she's in the mood."

"Emily, I know you're not consciously making this harder for me. But what I've been trying to tell you—in fact, what I came here on purpose to tell you—is that I fell in love with Priscilla."

The Arkansas Baptist passes on the story of a man who halted his car at a crossroads and yelled to a farmer driving a load of hay, "Hi, there, Cornsilk, is this the way to Calgry?" The farmer looked up in feigned astonishment, and exclaimed, "By heck, stranger, how did you know my name was Cornsilk?" "I guessed it," said the motorist. "Then, if you're so goldurned smart," concluded the farmer, as he drove on, "Guess your way to Calgry."

Florence Chadwick, the channel swimmer, was recognized at a Hollywood night club and called upon to say a few words. When she stepped to the mike, she suffered an attack of stage fright, and gazed mutely at the audience. From the rear came a helpful suggestion: "Cheer up, kid! Swim something!"

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—The shocking racketeering conditions along the nation's waterfront, which involve bribery of public officials, graft payments to union leaders, criminally inspired strikes and murders, could have been eradicated long ago by federal prosecution, if strong action by Washington had not been deemed politically inadvisable and dangerous.

Every attorney general for the last twenty years has been urged to undertake an investigation of the tieup among gangsters, politicians, longshoremen union bosses and the steamship companies.

It was suggested that the Kefauver Committee turn its inquiry in this direction, when it questioned Mayor — Ambassador O'Dwyer about his failure to break up Murder Incorporated and its waterfront allies, the Anastasia brothers.

IN FAIRNESS — Largely for political reasons, the Department of Justice preferred to look the other way. In fairness to the Kefauver Committee, it should be noted that its funds and its term of authority were running out when it stumbled on this situation.

Interestingly enough, Rudolph Halley, chief Kefauver counsel

and now president of the New York City Council, has proposed numerous reforms of a local nature to break the criminals' and the politicians' domination of the docks.

INDIFFERENCE — The reasons for federal indifference to these underworld activities are plain. Almost every official, political fixer and union leader involved was a Democratic stalwart, who delivered the votes of his gang and his district on Election Day.

National revulsion over the revelations, which are now being brought out by the New York State and New Jersey Crime Commissions, would have reacted against the party in power more violently than did 1950-1952 disclosures of the scandalous "mess at Washington" in last month's voting.

Indeed, had Governor Dewey been able to exploit them in 1948 he might have defeated Harry S. Truman.

PROBLEM — Criminal conditions along the nation's waterfront, including the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Coasts, are a national rather than a local problem and scourge, according to leading lawyers. In their opinion, there is no question of Federal jurisdiction over this important area.

It has been estimated, for instance, that these racketeering activities increase the annual cost of handling imports and exports at the port of New York alone by $350 million. The sum would probably be doubled or tripled, if depredations of a similar nature at other great harbors are included in the total.

TRIBUTE—This is the tribute which gangsters, politicians and a few influential labor czars exact from manufacturers, shippers, purchasers and consumers of the many billions of dollars worth of goods that are loaded or unloaded at these centers of commerce.

Ironically, a great part of this additional cost is borne by the United States government, for it is imposed on shipments of food, weapons and other supplies to our armed forces overseas and to our NATO allies.

Not even the Barbary pirates in the Mediterranean, against whom the young nation waged its first foreign war, took such a toll from the American people in the early years of the 19th century.

WEAPON — The anti-gangster weapon, always available in the Federal armory for attacking this criminal army—and which President-elect Eisenhower may use—is the "interstate commerce" clause of the Constitution. It has been utilized against far less menacing crooks than the waterfront thieves, murderers and corrupt officials.

When the white-slave trade became threatening many years ago, transporting a woman across state lines for immoral purposes was made a federal offense. After the Lindbergh kidnapping, it was invoked so that federal detectives could enter such cases.

It was subsequently directed against thefts of automobiles, when that became an important part of the nation's criminal machinery. As a result of the Kefauver investigation, Congress enacted a law against interstate transportation of slot machines.

Obviously, only a small portion of our multibillion dollar commerce is used or consumed within the borders of the states where it enters. It crosses every state line as it enters into the nation's business and industry and economic system. Similarly, exports have been transported across state lines en route to embarkation points.

So, what are President Truman and Attorney General McGranery waiting for?

Franklin School Yule Program Given By Pupils

Franklin St. school windows were decorated with red candles and snow flakes and the rooms were decorated with Christmas trees, bells and holly for the Christmas program presented by the students to their parents and friends, Monday afternoon.

A large tree was placed in the hall, around which the students assembled for the program. Each participant wore a white collar.

"It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," and "O Come All Ye Faithful," were sung, after which Mrs. Ward's first grade sang, "Christmas Bells" and "Christmas Stockings."

Other selections were "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "The First Noel," "O Come Little Children" by Mrs. Johnson's first grade and "Santa's Coming," and "Jingle Bells" by both first grades. "Up on the House Top," was presented by all the students and Mrs. Blackburn's second grade sang three numbers.

All students sang, "Joy to the World," and "White Christmas," and Miss Updyke's third grade sang "Happy Christmas Day," and "Santa's Reindeer Wear Bright Bells." The school pupils sang, "Rudolph the Rednose Reindeer," and two numbers were given by the fourth grade taught by Mrs. Ullman and Mrs. Kifer entitled, "In Bethlehem One Night," and "I Saw Three Ships." The solo part was sung by Billy Wyatt.

After all the students sang "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town," "A Merry Christmas," and "Willie Claus," were sung by Mrs. Wallon's fifth grade. "Deck the Hall," was followed by "Christmas Lullaby," and "On A Winter Morning," by Mrs. Pritt's fifth grade. "Song of the Infant Jesus," was given by Mrs. Webb's sixth grade and Dick Gerhardt read the Christmas story from St. Luke.

A playlet was given by Mrs. Wallon's fifth grade and included in the cast were Mary Lou Brown, David Huffer, Sharon Thompson, Harold Arledge, Linda Price, Cindy Hanley, Phyllis Ullman, Minerva Heeter, Cheryl Evans and Rosalee McCall.

The party was in charge of Mrs. Harry Barthelmas and Mrs. James P. Shea, co-chairmen, assisted by three room mothers for each room. Santa Claus visited the kindergarten and the first and second grade rooms.

College Prexy's Disapprove Of Post-Season Bowl Games

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A majority of college presidents have reported their disapproval of football bowl games.

This was reported Tuesday in a study of post-season competition, undertaken by the Extra Events Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The survey showed a strong majority of the nation's educational and athletic administrators, as well as the athletes and student leaders, approve of "properly controlled and administered" post-season athletic events — with the college presidents taking exception on the football bowl games.

The presidents were asked to report their institutional policy and 31 per cent of the 156 responding college presidents approved bowl games while 53 per cent reported disapproval.

"It is significant data," the Extra Events Committee said, "that among the presidents whose teams have participated in such bowls, however, 45.6 per cent approved such competition and 35 per cent disapproved.

"The survey was conducted by the Extra Events Committee, which MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Illinois' prestige as the nation's second-ranking collegiate team in the Associated Press basketball poll dipped Tuesday night. The Illini absorbed a 77-73 defeat at the hands of Minnesota before 16,878 fans.

The victory was a tribute to Coach Ozzie Cowles' inspired Minnesota charges who turned the trick by out-rebounding the taller Illini and by skillfully executing ingenious defenses set to check the Illini near the basket.

The failure of the Illinois first stringers to turn in their top performances aided the Gophers. In fact, it was the ball-hawking and shooting of the Illini reserves in the last 15 minutes of play that kept their team in contention.

Minnesota held Illinois' 6 foot 9 center, John Kerr, to five points and he was forced to score one of his two field goals from the outside. Kerr previously had a 21.3 average per game for three contests.

Chuck Mencil took over the Big Ten all-game scoring lead with a total of 77 points as a result of his 18 point production. He now has a 19.2 average for four games.

Seattle Cager Near All-Time Scoring Mark

Amazing John O'Brien
Needs Single Point To
Set College Record

NEW YORK (AP)—The next point the amazing John O'Brien scores for the Seattle basketball team will give him a new four-year record for college basketball.

The point-scoring prodigy, the first collegian to top the 1,000 mark in one season, contributed 29 points to Seattle's 102-101 victory over New York University last night and now is tied with Nate DeLong, who scored 2,592 points for River Falls (Wis.) Teachers College.

From there it's only a short hop for the agile O'Brien to the career record of 2,902 set by DeLong in five years.

Thus, Johnny once again takes the headlines away from his twin brother Eddie, his teammate ever since they first started tossing a basketball around in their native South Amboy, N. J. Eddie scored 33 points, including two vital foul shots at the end, and was at least equally as important as his more publicized brother to the team's victory.

BUT IT WAS only another contradiction in the career of the twins who went to a college 3,000 miles from home on baseball scholarships. That's right, baseball—Coach Al Brightman got the scholarship for them after seeing them perform in the National Semi-Pro Baseball Tourney in Wichita, Kan. "Pro basketball would be nice, but I'm really more interested in baseball," Johnny said last night. "I'm an infielder and Eddie's an outfielder. We both bat and hit right-handed, but I once pitched a softball game left-handed."

He didn't discuss any pro offers, but it's reported the Pittsburgh Pirates are definitely interested.

Last night's victory, scored before 12,752 who saw the highest-scoring game in the 19 years of college basketball in Madison Square Garden, was a triumphal return engagement for the O'Briens. When they played in the National Invitation Tournament last spring, a large delegation of family and friends came over from Jersey but Holy Cross turned back Seattle, 78-73. Johnny got 21

Brown Shuns Needle From Lions' Pilot

CLEVELAND (AP)—Coach Paul Brown had a terse "no comment" today to a long range dig at him from Detroit by Lions Coach Buddy Parker.

Brown, said Parker, is trying to make his Cleveland Browns "underdogs" for Sunday's pro football championship game with the Lions by inferring the Browns are in poor shape.

Parker also said that Brown was "harping" about injuries, "old men" on his team, and "rustiness" in a two-week layoff.

In the last week or so, Brown has been complaining about injuries to such key players as halfback Dub Jones and end Mac Speedie. He still insisted today, "Frankly we're not counting on them."

As for "old men," the Browns have nine players who have been with the team since it was established in 1946. Brown has been known to defend them, in spite of their age, as better than "a lot of younger men I know."

These "nine old men" are:

Quarterback Otto Graham, fullback Marion Motley, offensive ends Dante Lavelli and Speedie, defensive end George Young, tackle Lou Groza, guards Lin Houston and Bill Willis, center Frank Gatski.

Chandler Dickers For Baseball Job

NEW YORK (AP)—There is a chance that A. B. (Happy) Chandler may be back in organized baseball—as managing director of the San Francisco Club of the Pacific Coast League. Negotiations between Paul Fagan, owner of the Seas, and the former baseball commissioner have been resumed after having been broken off two weeks ago.

At the time, Fagan had offered Chandler $25,000 a year to take charge of the Seas, with Fagan retaining the ownership. Chandler was willing to accept the post, but asked for a five-year contract instead of the two-year pact offered by Fagan. Happy argued it would require that time to rebuild points, but 15 were on foul shots as Holy Cross held Johnny to three field goals.

New Health Council Could Be 'Clearing House' For Aid

System Is Outlined By W. J. Treece

Suggested Plan Would Eliminate Duplication Here

A relatively new system which would hold duplication to a minimum in medical aid for needy cases will probably be urged as a project for Pickaway County Health Council.

The proposal was recently outlined by W. J. Treece, field secretary for the Ohio Society for Crippled Children, during a visit here to address the society's local unit.

He emphasized it was merely a suggestion that "may prove interesting" to members of the newly-formed health group.

Among top items of business scheduled for discussion when the Health Council meets next month in Circleville will be projects considered worthy of the organization's support and within its range of policy.

Under the arrangement described by Treece, the Health Council would operate "as sort of a clearing house" for plans to extend medical aid to needy individuals in Pickaway County, both children and adults. He outlined how the setup operates while relating its success in other communities.

"IT SEEMS to be a highly beneficial arrangement," he said, "both from the standpoint of the people giving the aid and of the people receiving it. It gives maximum effect to the civic-minded efforts in any community by making sure that one case isn't helped from two or three directions while another case unknowingly is being ignored."

"A number of counties and single communities are already using the plan and its success seems general. It may prove interesting to Pickaway County's new health organization, especially since I understand the council is off to such a good beginning with far-sighted and progressive policies to direct its course."

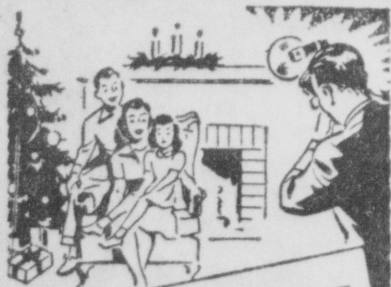

Treece said he was not prepared to give a detailed suggestion as to how the plan could be worked in this county, and added:

"The exact ways and means, after all, would be in the field of the council's own decision. There would be a problem or two to solve here, but it's very likely your organization may decide to give the plan a trial."

Among apparent problems, Treece admitted, would be the manner in which a central unit could be maintained by the health group so that it could handle queries from time to time throughout the year. Such queries would be directed to the council when some person or community group desired to extend medical aid to an individual who lacks the means of paying for expensive aid—equipment for the handicapped, minor surgery, medical attention, and so forth.

The council, through some permanent file or representative authorized to check by telephone, would then survey the relatively few number of organizations that may be already giving aid to the same individual in Pickaway County. Results of this checkup, in turn, would be relayed back to the person or group that made the query, thus revealing in advance where duplication would result.

EVEN ASIDE from its effect against duplication of effort and contributed funds, Treece pointed out, the plan would have other benefits. For example, it would speed help for urgent cases and also would very likely disclose impor-

Ohio Second In Nation In Farm Power

Ohio is the nation's second leading farm state in "percentage of farms on electricity power lines." Of Ohio's 199,359 farms, 195,650 or 98.1 per cent, are on power lines. The national percentage is 86.5.

Only Indiana, with 99.4 percent of its 166,627 farms on power lines, is ahead of Ohio in the farm-state classification. Connecticut and Washington, which are not classified as farm states, have 99.9 percent of their farms on lines.

A report also shows that the "east-northeast" section of the nation, which includes Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, is the leading farm-electrified section. That area, which contains 18.4 percent of the nation's farms, is 96.6 percent electrified.

THE STATE percentages in the east-northeast area, in addition to Ohio and Indiana, are: Illinois, 92.7 percent; Michigan, 97 percent; and Wisconsin, 95.9 percent.

Rapid electrification of the nation's farms has taken place since 1920, when only about 20 percent were on power lines, research figures show. More than 90 percent of the midwest's farms are now on lines, which is about 3.5 percent higher than the national figure.

However, use of electricity on farms still is in its infancy, say research experts. They say use of electricity is expected to almost double in the next decade because of the rapid purchase of home freezers, air conditioning units, water systems, pumps for irrigation, chicken brooders, crop dryers, dairy equipment and many other pieces of electrical equipment.

New Recruiter Assigned Here

M-Sgt. Sheridan M. Pyle of the Lancaster recruiting station has been assigned to temporarily take over Pickaway County's Air Force and Army recruiting station in the Veterans of Foreign War post in Circleville.

Sgt. Pyle is replacing Sfc. Dennis Bonifant, who is being transferred overseas after the holidays.

The local recruiting office will be open for enlistments every Monday from 9:30 a. m. until 4 p. m.

David Matson Gets Promotion

David W. Matson was recently promoted to Army sergeant first class while serving in Germany with the 1st Infantry Division.

Constantly training under simulated combat conditions, the division is part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Army. It is stationed in the southern part of Germany.

Matson, who arrived overseas in July, 1946, is assigned as a platoon sergeant in headquarters and headquarters company of the Division's 26th Infantry Regiment.

He has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal with Clasp, the World War II Victory Medal and the Army of Occupation Medal for duty in Germany.

The sergeant, who entered the Army in June 1945, was a guard at the Palace of Justice in Nurnberg during the time of the war crimes trials. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hearshel Matson of New Holland.

but not the full story!

UNTIL YOU READ these words you might not guess that this is a school corridor during a recent air-raid drill.

Until you read further you might not realize that this is only one brief moment . . . one small aspect . . . of a much bigger story.

A whole city was involved in the drill! But what city? When? What else happened? What were the headaches? The satisfactions? What did the people say and do? What did the mayor say? The Army?

A picture, a headline, a brief announcement can whet your appetite for news, but cannot satisfy your hunger for the whole story.

It takes many words to bring you all you want to know. Words bring meaning, words bring news. Newspapers bring news.

Only the newspaper brings you full stories day after day — pictures and sufficient words. Only the newspaper can bring you the full story as soon as your appetite is aroused. Fast, without delay.

• This goes for advertising, too. The brief message that hangs in the air . . . or the brief headlines here or there . . . may indeed have a momentary interest.

But the newspaper ad carries the brass-tacks quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself.

Like a news item, the ad can be examined and re-examined. Can be read any time. Anywhere. Can be clipped and carried in a pocket or pocketbook.

And just as the newspaper speaks the special language of the town it mirrors, the ads themselves have the same important local quality. No other medium can match this quality.

Add to all this the fact that newspapers reach everybody in town, and you know why the newspaper is the nation's most powerful advertising medium.

No wonder all advertisers — both retail and "national" — invest more money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

CHRISTENDOM PLANS HOLY DAY

Old Santa Had Trouble Getting Start This Morning, But He's On His Way

NORTH POLE — Well, children, Santa Claus is on his way to your house. He has your address in his pocket.

He and his eight reindeer took off from a snowy runway just at twilight. And right this minute they are zooming through the skies with your Christmas presents faster, faster, and faster.

There was a lot of excitement at the North Pole this morning. Here's what happened:

The eight reindeer trotted gayly out of their hangar at dawn and frisked in their harness as Mrs. Santa Claus tied tinkly jingle bells to their antlers.

"Hold still, you little reindeer," said Mrs. Santa. "Why don't you act more like a Christmas tree? You don't see a Christmas tree jumping around while it is being decorated, do you?"

A hundred little elves then tied a rope to Santa Claus' big red sleigh and hauled it from the hangar. A hundred other elves began piling the sleigh full of presents for all the boys and girls in the whole world.

"I never saw so many presents," said Santa, shaking his head. "More children every year. I don't know whether my old sled will hold them all this year."

And then it happened—yes, right at that moment. Cre-e-ek, cre-a-a-ack! One runner broke, and the big sleigh sagged to one side, spilling Christmas gifts into the snow. "Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" said Santa Claus. "What a time for my sleigh to break down. What'll I do?"

"It certainly would be terrible if all the children in the world woke up tomorrow and found you hadn't been able to bring them their presents," agreed Mrs. Santa.

Just then a big weather observation plane from the U. S. Air Force flew over. It circled and landed on Santa Claus' private runway, and the pilot stepped out.

"Are you in any trouble, sir?" asked.

Santa pointed at the broken runner on his big sleigh.

"The Air Force pilot looked at it and smiled. "Oh, that isn't such a disaster, sir," he said. "Why don't you let us lend you a modern jet bomber, and you can deliver your presents in it. After all, that sleigh is rather old-fashioned, and your reindeer are probably getting old and slow and could use a rest this year."

Santa hesitated. He walked over and patted each reindeer. "What do you think?" he asked. "Do you want to stay home and rest this year?"

The reindeer shook their heads, and big tears rolled out of their brown eyes. They loved their job of pulling the big old-fashioned sleigh through the skies each Christmas. They looked forward to the trip all year long.

"No, thank you, I don't want your jet bomber," Santa Claus told the airplane pilot. "We'll make it in the old-fashioned way. I've never disappointed the children yet, and I won't now."

He called for his favorite blacksmith, a grimy elf named Mr. Forge, and asked him if he could fix the sleigh.

"I can fix anything," said Mr. Forge. "I can even fix a television set."

"But what will you use to make

"But what will you use to make a new runner for my sleigh?" asked Santa.

"An icicle, of course," said Mr. Forge, impatiently. "What else?" So a dozen elves climbed up to the North Pole and knocked off the biggest icicle they could find. Just before twilight after the icicle had been fixed so it wouldn't melt, Mr. Forge firmly nailed it to the sleigh with a silver hammer. Then the rest of the presents were piled on.

There was hardly room in the seat for Santa Claus himself.

"Ho, ho, ho! Here we go!" he cried. "Ho, ho, ho! Here we go!"

As the little reindeer leaned against their harness and the sleigh began to move, the U. S. Air Force plane took off on the roadway ahead of them. That made the little reindeer angry.

"Old and slow are we?" snorted Donder to Blitzen. "Let's show that airplane our heels."

And that is just what they did. Faster and faster their little hooves twinkled in the clear frosty air, and soon they overtook the big lumbering airplane and passed it, jingling their bells and laughing.

Waving goodbye to the airplane, the merry old saint in the driver's seat laughed, too, until the tears ran down into his long white beard. "You can't beat Santa Claus," he said, "so you might as well quit trying."

And the fine old-fashioned sleigh sped on through the skies, bringing a present for you... and you... and you... and you.

News Briefs

COLUMBUS — Ohio State University mourned today the death of Dr. George Washington Rightmire, 84, who served as OSU president from 1928 to 1938, the first alumnus to head the institution. He died Tuesday.

'Modern' Brutus Uses Tommygun

LOWESTOFT, England — A jazzed-up version of the tragedy of Julius Caesar rocked this small East Coast town today—Brutus killed Caesar with a tommygun in a school dramatization of Shakespeare's famous play.

The town's education committee demanded an immediate inquiry as the bewildered school headmaster, P. W. Hartop, explained:

"Our idea was to produce this great play in modern setting. We adhered strictly to its theme that violence does not pay. After all, the daggers used in the original form can be every bit as offensive as tommyguns."

No Deliveries On Christmas

Circleville milkmen will not take the chance of interfering with Santa's visits in the city early Christmas morning.

Local dairies report their milkmen will not make deliveries on Christmas Day and the dairy plants are to be closed down for the holiday.

WHEREVER THERE ARE MEN of good will there's a Christmas spirit, even at the battle front in Korea. Cpl. Blonda Dixon of Parkersburg, W. Beneath the tree are presents sent by staff of the Kiplinger Newsletter.

Township Fire Pact Talk Fails; Walkout Averted

Eight of Pickaway County's townships Tuesday night started to walk out on the city of Circleville during an argument over the way local fire protection costs are divided, but both sides finally agreed to withhold "final decisions" until the next meeting of City Council Jan. 6.

The explosive question, admittedly one that could "hurt both sides" if agreement isn't reached, was discussed at a meeting between City Council and spokesmen for the Rural Township Fire Association.

Under a contract between the city and the Association, Circleville firefighters respond to fires outside the city with a truck paid for by the Association.

The present controversy developed through a tangle over renewal of the contract and the city's request for a readjustment of costs.

Currently, the city is paid $14 for each fire call answered in the townships.

"Only for the sake of discussion and not as a rigid figure," the city, through Councilman Richard Penn, suggested the $14 be boosted to $40 a run.

A DELEGATION of nine members of the Association registered vigorous opposition to the proposal and, at first, moved to walk out of the meeting. Later, however, they agreed to wait until City Council meets next month. The rural firefighters stood firm on their demand that the present arrangement be continued "or else."

The "or else" alternative they repeatedly warned would mean they would take their township trucks out of the Circleville fire station and set up their own fire house. Spokesmen for the association said they could keep their trucks in Pickaway County garage "rent free."

They said "there would always be a man on duty at the garage" if the arrangement became necessary, and added they would have the use of the garage telephone.

Harry L. Melvin of Muhlenberg Township, president of the Association, said his group would be willing to sign a contract identical with one recently signed, but which later was declared invalid by the city.

"Merry Christmas from the Kyushu Gypsies" was written in Korean on each box.

The transport plane flies a supply run between Kyushu, Japan, and Korea.

"We always fly low over this one tiny island," said Lt. Don Davis of Natchez, Miss., the pilot.

"We see the kids come out and wave at us, and we rock our wings in return."

So the crew began collecting candy bars. They decided to deliver them Christmas Eve.

"We circled the island twice and attracted plenty of attention because we'd never done this before," said Lt. Edward H. Osmon of Akron, co-pilot.

"Then we heaved out the parachute container and watched the parachute drift down to the waiting kids. It landed near the village, so we know they got their Christmas presents in good shape."

White Christmas Not Sighted Here

CHICAGO — It looks like a White Christmas for only some parts of the country.

The U. S. Weather Bureau here said no heavy snowfalls appeared in prospect for Christmas, but light falls and flurries were probable for many areas.

Forecasters said there is very little snow east of the Mississippi except in Northern New York and in sections of New England. But there is a blanket of white over wide areas from Kansas northwestward into Montana and North Dakota and northeastward from Kansas into Michigan. There also was snow in the Rocky Mountains.

Millions Raise Prayers Of Thanks, Hope

Solemn Ceremonies To Commemorate Birth Of 'Prince Of Peace'

By The Associated Press

Christians turned from the cares and sorrows of a troubled, strife-racked world today to begin the happy yet solemn ceremonies commemorating the birth of Him who preached the gifts of peace and love to all mankind.

As the last-minute rush for presents and festive goodies died away, millions of faithful lifted their hearts in Christmas Eve prayers of thanks and hope, and their voices in carols of joy.

Churches throughout Christendom threw open their doors to welcome all to traditional Christmas Eve ceremonies. In Bethlehem of Judea, a special Catholic midnight mass beginning in the Chapel of St. Catherine will end in the Grotto of the Nativity, on the spot designated by His followers as the birthplace of Christ nearly 2,000 years ago.

At the same time a Protestant service will be held on nearby terraced slopes that mark the traditional spot where angels announced the birth of Christ to shepherds watching their flocks by night.

HUNDREDS of pilgrims have arrived in the Holy Land to worship at the shrines connected with the birth of Christ. As in past Christmas times, the heavy border guards between Jordan and Israel, still technically at war, will step aside to permit passage to the holy places.

Pope Pius XII broadcast his annual Christmas message of peace this morning. It was beamed around the world in 23 languages. The pontiff's Christmas Eve mass also was to be aired by the Vatican radio at 5:40 p. m., EST.

More than an hour earlier, President Truman was to deliver his last official Christmas message to the nation. He was to speak at 1:30 p. m., EST, at the 24th annual lighting of the Living Christmas Tree on the White House grounds.

Other chiefs of state and rulers prepared special messages. Queen Elizabeth II will broadcast her first Christmas message to the world-wide British Commonwealth and empire at 10:55 p. m., EST, Thursday.

As Americans at home rushed their last preparations for the season, their thoughts went out to the thousands of fighting men spending Christmas in troubled spots around the world—Korea, Germany, Austria, Japan and other lands threatened by tyranny.

ALL THESE, however, will have their celebrations too. There will be packages from home and special Christmas dinners. And American troops the world over have chipped in to buy toys and food for

Grandpa Ike To Trim Yule Tree Tonight

NEW YORK — Like many another grandfather, President-elect Eisenhower will help trim a Christmas tree tonight. It is being put up for the children of the President-elect's son John, an Army major in Korea.

The children—Dwight David, 4; Barbara Anne, 3, and Susan, 11 months—arrived with their mother Tuesday at the general's Columbia University home onorningside Heights. They live in Highland Falls, N. Y., near West Point.

Also on hand for the holiday will be Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud of Denver, Colo.

The Christmas dinner menu arranged by Mrs. Eisenhower calls for turkey with oyster dressing, mashed potatoes and sweet potatoes, creamed onions, turnips and plum pudding.

The general did most of his Christmas shopping in Hawaii two weeks ago on the way home from his inspection of Korea.

Hitchhiker Gets Into Wrong Auto

HILLSBORO — Elmer Barnes of Hillsboro was in jail today because he hitchhiked a ride in the wrong car.

Workmen On City's Huge 'Gift' Expect To Lose Race With Santa

It appeared early Wednesday that Santa Claus will arrive somewhat before his helpers complete this city's "biggest Christmas Gift" in history.

But even so, this community has the satisfaction in giving its all toward completion of the project.

The "gift" is a new four-room house for the Montford Pollock family, left homeless Dec. 10 in a fire.

Even by working late into the nights Monday and Tuesday, workmen have been unable to complete the project.

But they have done the best they could do. The new house is only a few hours away from becoming a home for the Pollock family.

WORKING until after 11 p. m. Tuesday, workmen nearly completed the siding of imitation brick on the house, they installed the flooring, put in one window and put on much of the ceiling.

Remaining to be completed are installation of three windows and two doors completion of the ceiling and completion of the inside paneling.

But even after that, the house will have to be heated several days before the dampness left by rains during construction will be baked out.

Although the house is not expected to reach completion in time for the family to enjoy Christmas in it, if local workmen continue their fine performances the family will at least be able to begin the new year in their new home.

Materials and cash in quantity were donated for the project by business places and individuals of Circleville.

When gifts of material for more was purchased from the cash fund. And now all required materials are either in the house of at the site for the completion of the job.

Workmen were again to have converted at the site Wednesday in a last-minute race with Santa, although they would be fighting a losing battle.

the meeting roamed over a wide variety of fire protection details.

Councilman Ray Cook, presiding in the absence of Council President Ben Gordon, opened the discussion with an outline of what the city wants in the way of rate readjustment. He also explained why a recent one-year contract signed with the Association by Safety Director C. O. Leist is invalid "since the Safety Director wasn't authorized to take such action" at that time.

Melvin, a few minutes later, opened the Association's side of the argument, warning that Circleville would have to buy a new fire truck for the city if the township truck is removed and reminding the councilmen the township truck in the city fire house reduces the community's fire insurance rates.

Melvin at first pressed for a final decision on the issue during the meeting, but later agreed to wait when Penn and others explained it wasn't a regular Council meeting.

In place of the one-year contract Leist has already signed, Councilman George Crites and others urged the Association to accept a four-month contract while a revision of the $14 rate could be studied. The Association flatly refused to do this.

In urging this approach to the problem, Crites said the city in 1952 has paid about $28,500 to operate the city fire branch and said the city feels it isn't getting enough out of the setup with the eight townships covered by the association.

"We'd like you to raise the ante a little," he said.

Crites agreed the city would have to obtain another fire truck if the association took the one it owns. On the question of higher fire insurance rates for Circleville, he added the municipality "will probably have to face that matter before long anyway."

His reference presumably was to the fact that the current rates were set when Circleville's fire equipment was considered up to date—and that the rates now charged could no longer be justified here without new equipment.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said, in reply to a query by Cook, that a truck's value as a rate factor "goes way down" after the vehicle is 10 years old. City firemen here have stated none of the equipment on hand is "up to par" alongside the fire insurance rates.

Suggesting that some use might be made of volunteer firemen in solving the city-Association disagreement, Councilman Harold Clifton referred to a recent letter by the State Inspection Bureau which touched on the possibility of higher rates and the number of city fire personnel.

Clifton said he had not been aware of some of the details. He was assured by other councilmen and Chief Wise that the facts were correct.

It was shortly after this stage that Melvin rose from his seat and said:

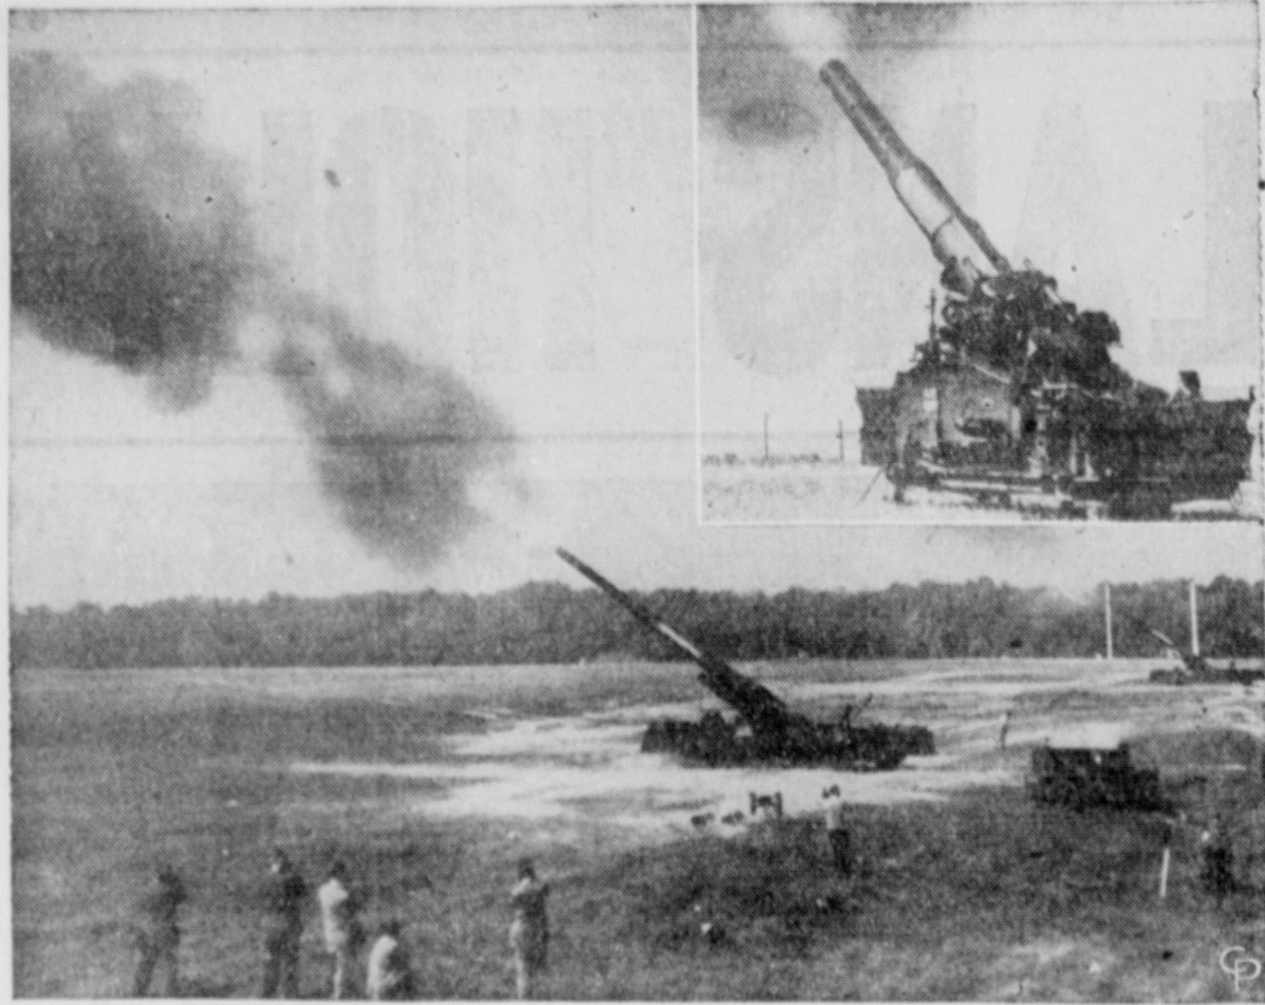

"Well, gentlemen. Some of these (Association) boys are in a hurry. We want to know your decision."

In later discussion it was brought out the Association, over a 12-month period, has paid the city a total of $700 for helping fight 50 fires in the townships. In addition to that amount, Melvin said the association paid $352 insurance on its township truck.

A LISTING produced by Councilman Joe Brink showed only about eight of the 50 calls were indicated as "building fires." Other councilmen pointed out, however, that a number of the "grassfires" listed may have also threatened farm structures.

Melvin at one time said the townships have to pay $14 every time a fire breaks out at the city dump—

A-Gun, Big Bertha's New 'Daughter,' Has Won Love of U. S. Artillerymen

The atomic "Big Bertha" fires a practice shot at Aberdeen Proving Grounds. Note size of gun compared to men in foreground. In upper right is a closer view of the gun.

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Correspondent

ABERDEEN, Md. — "Big Bertha's" progeny is doing very well, thank you!

All you have to see to believe that there is a new lease on life for the long line of big guns that stretches from the Battle of Crecy in 1326, through the dramatic interlude of the 76-mile shelling of Paris by the Germans in 1918, is to witness the jubilation here of the artillerymen over their brand new 280-mm. mobile atomic gun. It is their answer to "all that moonshining" of Air Force advocates who sometimes seem to imply that they think the field gun is as dead in modern warfare as the proverbial dodo. And up-to-the-minute developments in the Korean war, accentuating the role of the artillery, lend support to the big gun enthusiasts.

The Russians, always great hands at artillery, have schooled their Chinese Communist pupils in the techniques which made their field weapons such a big factor in the halting of the Germans before Moscow and elsewhere on the Eastern Front in World War II.

IT USED to be an unusual day in Korea when the Communists fired 500 rounds of artillery. Lately in the terrific battles around Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge, the Chinese rolled up 200 field pieces and shelled Allied lines with 23,000 rounds a day.

Then the dramatic duel between Communists and United Nations

artillerymen started, and in three days the Kumhwa valley shuddered under barrages that reminded veteran infantry officers of comparable scenes in both World Wars I and II.

On a Tuesday the Chinese sent over that record 23,000 rounds. One day later the volume of fire was cut by Allied counter blasting to only 11,000 rounds, and on Thursday it dropped to 4,000. The front was quiet on Friday. "That was the work of the artillery; no air forces achievement," proudly declared the handlers of the big guns. "Wait 'til we get the new 280-mm. gun!"

OF COURSE, observers of the trends of Korean fighting point out that the ascendancy of the artillery there naturally coincides with the emergence of "a war of position."

The Germans used such a lull in 1918 to author the Big Bertha exploit, which still is classic in the saga of the artillery through the centuries.

On a quiet March 23, Parisians were startled when a shell exploded in the streets, as if from nowhere. True, the rumblings of the battle front 70 miles away could be heard in the metropolis when the wind was right, but no gun with such range was known to exist.

For 140 days "Big Bertha" made her weight felt. Enough shells were lobbed into Paris to kill 256 persons. The Allies tried to pooh-pooh it, but in retrospect the seriousness is not discounted.

Nor is the achievement of the Germans deprecated by artillery specialists. Big Bertha was one of several huge guns built at the Krupp munitions works, and nicknamed after Frau Bertha von Bohlen, head of the Krupp family.

THE GUN was 110 feet long, weighed 142 tons, and fired a 264-pound shell 76 miles with very poor accuracy. Firing occurred on every third day. By contrast, Uncle Sam's new artillery pride is much more supple, capable of great accuracy, highly mobile, but big enough to be in the same class.

A marvel of engineering, the new weapon weighs 42 tons, and hurls an 11-inch shell with pinpoint accuracy for 20 miles. The shells may be either convention or atomic.

Don't relegate such artillery solely to the old version of "a war of position," say artillerymen. Moved by two huge motor trucks, the gun can be set up and fired in 20 minutes, instead of three days. It has its own built-in recoil tracks.

The main part of the gun, weighing 1,600 pounds, is balanced on a single steel ball, and two men can move it around. Electricity and hydraulics power the tremendous piece, but it can be handled manually, too.

One thing about artillerymen: they love their guns, and you should see the affection building up among them for this remote and much younger cousin of Big Bertha!

Lass, 14, Gets Painful Present

A 14-year-old Circleville lass Tuesday received an unwanted and painful present for Christmas.

She is Wanda Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rose of 497 East Franklin street, who suffered first and second degree burns on her face, neck and arms.

Berger hospital attaches said the girl was admitted for treatment at about 4:15 p. m. Tuesday after having spilled hot grease from a skillet.

Bowers To Seek District Title This Sunday

Robert Bowers, senior in Ashville High School and winner of the Pickaway County Prince of Peace contest, will compete for a gold medal award at 7 p. m. Sunday in a district contest to be held in the South Congregational church, Columbus. Bowers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Bowers of Ashville.

The contest is in its 28th year under the continuous sponsorship of the Ohio Council of Churches. The young people who will participate in the district have won bronze medals in their community contests and silver medals in their county contests.

These counties are represented in the district contest: Pickaway, Delaware, Madison, Licking, Clark and Union.

District winners from all over Ohio will go to Columbus on January 18 for the state semi-finals. Six winners in that elimination will compete for college scholarships and cash prizes.

The finals will be held at the Ohio Pastors' Convention, which meets January 26-29 in Columbus.

Bethlehem (Ky.) Lives Up To Name

BETHLEHEM, Ky. —The little town of Bethlehem lives up to its name at Christmastime.

As usual, around 300 persons are expected to attend church services in the town that took its name from the birthplace of the Prince of Peace. Hardly more than that number live in or near the village, 36 miles northeast of Louisville.

"The people don't make too big a play on the name," according to the Rev. Delbert Butts, pastor of the Bethlehem Baptist Church, "but they are aware they have something to live up to."

Ship Disaster Toll Is Placed At 27

BEIRUT —Lebanon's director of internal security said today that 27 persons were known to have died in the wreck of the French liner Champollion and about 100 were injured in reaching the shore from the reef-grounded, split-in-half ship.

Skillful Lebanese boatmen brought the last of the 328 passengers and crewmen through still-raging surf and jagged reefs Tuesday, about 40 hours after the veteran liner was blown on a reef and split amidships near shore.

needy children in lands that are their temporary homes.

In a Christmas message to his Eighth Army troops in Korea, Gen. James Van Fleet declared the Christmas star "still burns to lead us in our pursuit of peace on earth and good will towards men."

The Eighth Army chief exposed a well-nigh universal hope in the Western world when he told his men he hoped that the next Christmas would find them in their homes and peace restored.

The Chinese Communists even joined in the yuletide festivities on the Korean battlefield. A Red patrol decorated a Christmas tree on the snow-covered no man's land between Allied and Red lines.

Some of the crudely written banners on the tree wished Allied soldiers a merry Christmas but others added a wish for the "cold death" of Allied troops if the United Nations Command did not give in at the suspended armistice talks.

Not too much is known about Christmas plans in Communist countries. In Russia, Christmas is celebrated on Jan. 7 because the Russians use a different calendar.

In Russian-led Poland the Communists evidently are trying to discourage traditional Christmas celebrations. The authorities are sponsoring, as a counter attraction, New Year's day festivities with lighted trees. They also are attempting to replace Father Christmas—as Santa is known in Poland—with the Russian "Grandfather Frost." This worthy distributes presents on Jan. 1.

Moonshine Hens To Provide Dinner

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. —Hamilton County officers destroyed a 2,000-gallon copper still Tuesday and confiscated enough chickens to provide Christmas dinner for county prisoners.

Sheriff Rex Richey said the big moonshining outfit was being operated in a chicken house and some chickens were being kept around "as a blind." He added: "The prisoners at county jail are going to have the biggest chicken dinner for Christmas they've ever had."

Radios To Carry Yule Greetings

ATLANTA —Airwaves tonight will carry the Christmas greetings of a 22-year-old polio victim who was too ill to write cards to her friends in Kentucky this year.

Doris Whittaker will tape record her holiday messages and amateur radio operators have volunteered to transmit them by ham network to her hometown, Somerset, Ky. Miss Whittaker came here last summer to find a job. A week later she became ill and has been in Grady Hospital since.

Queen's Christmas Message Delayed

LONDON —Queen Elizabeth's Christmas radio address, her first as sovereign, will begin Thursday three minutes later than usual—at 10:03 a. m., EST. It will be the first delay since the royal broadcasts started 20 years ago.

The Queen approved the change so that more than 1,000 overseas radio stations which will carry the address can be cued in to pick up the broadcast.

HENRY KEARNS

Henry Floyd Kearns, 75, of Atlanta, died at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in his home following an illness of one year.

Mr. Kearns, a retired farmer who lived in the Atlanta community all of his life, was born Aug. 2, 1877, son of Benjamin and Sarah Speakman Kearns.

Surviving him is his widow, Jessie Kearns; two sons, Royal Kearns of Clarksburg and Benjamin Kearns of New Holland; a step-son, Arthur Kearns, of Chillicothe; and seven grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Friday in Atlanta Methodist church with the Rev. J. K. Price officiating. Burial will be in Hallsville cemetery by direction of Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland.

Friends may call in the residence after 4 p. m. Thursday.

Pony-Rider, 15, Fractures Leg In Accident

A 15-year-old Circleville lad suffered a fractured left leg late Tuesday when the pony he was riding was struck by an auto.

The accident happened at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday on Lovers Lane at an alley leading from Fairview Avenue.

Injured was Forrest Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Martin of Fairview avenue.

Officer John White said the lad and pony were struck by an auto operated by Ralph Henry, 46, of Circleville Route 3.

Henry said the pony was bucking into the path of his car and he was unable to stop in time.

Young Martin was treated in Berger hospital for the fractured leg and for lacerations and abrasions. Injury sustained by the pony was undetermined.

Royal Listeners Invite In Carolers

SANDRINGHAM, England —Carol singers were chorusing merrily outside Sandringham House—the royal lodge—last night when a tall, handsome man stepped out into the cold air.

"Wouldn't you like to come in?" asked the Duke of Edinburgh. "I must be cold outside."

The 20 villagers from nearby Dersingham accepted with pleasure and continued their caroling in the drawing room. The listeners included Queen Elizabeth II, Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

LONDON —Neither Queen Elizabeth II nor Prime Minister Churchill expected them, so two dolls—charmingly attired in Japanese costumes—were detained at London Airport today.

The dolls came by British Overseas Airways Comet airliner and were the gift of the Japanese Students Union to the monarch and her Prime Minister. The customs official who impounded them explained someone had to pay the duty on the gifts.

Here Is Data For Barometers

Pickaway County Engineer's Office anticipates a number of queries from those who find new barometers among their Christmas gifts.

To adjust them correctly the owner has to know the altitude of his home locality.

Engineer Henry T. McCrady said the local official reading is pinpointed on a corner of the courthouse along Franklin St. And that spot of 694 feet above sea level.

That's the figure the barometer owners will need to know to adjust their instruments.

The barometers indicate weather changes in the making. Contrary to widespread belief, they are not especially designed to forecast what the weather is going to be.

SAVINGS and HOME LOANS

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

The chubby old man with the sled and the deer
Had a delicate problem as Christmas drew near.
He had to find presents, the right ones, to carry
Down to the White House for Ike and for Harry.
The latter was leaving, his troubles all through,
But Ike faced more trouble than he ever knew.
So Santa Claus fiddled and fumbled and fussed
And dug down in his bag till his beard was all mussed.
For anyone else what he picked might be simple:
A drum for a boy; for a girl a deep dimple.
But Harry and Dwight needed special good care.
Since soon one would be in and one wouldn't be there.
But Ike is the heir to a national debt
Which he'd like to reduce but maybe can't yet.
The headaches he faces, while not a surprise,
All add up to money: the aid for allies,
The war in Korea, inflation, the fight
Against Communist tactics, unseen and in sight.
"They're tough," said old Santa. "I wish I could see
"A magician or two to put under his tree.
"I know he could use an indebtedness chaser
"So maybe I'll give him a red ink eraser.
"For the unasked advice he'll be getting for free
"From people who think they know better than he.
"Some earmuffs might help, or a cave with no phone;
"And a cave would be handy when brickbats are thrown.
"Since Ike, who is nimble and hale and still hearty,
"May wear himself out keeping peace in his party.
"I'll give him a hammer, without showing a bruise,
But the problem of Harry gave Santa a start:
Since the White House inhabitants seldom depart—
This was the first one in 24 years—
By declining to run, Mr. Claus was in tears.
Not because Harry was leaving, indeed,
But what sort of gifts do ex-presidents need?
He liked Harry fine, always had, always would,
A warm, friendly man, the kind that's called good.
But Harry was going, not much worse for wear,
Still combing Republicans out of his hair.
They criticized, clubbed him, found all kinds of fault:
An amazing example of verbal assault.
Old Santa thought twice while he tried to unravel
The problem of Harry: "Some rest and some travel
"Should do for a starter. And then? Now let's see.
"What would I want the most of if I could be he?
"A long life, of course, and a strong voice so loud
"I could make myself heard on the furthestmost cloud.
"I'd make the Republicans hear me. They'd learn
"How a roasting can make an effective slow burn."
But Santa knew Harry might also keep busy
Dashing off notes, when he got in a tizzy,
To critics of music and critics of Harry.
"I can give him," thought Santa, "a gift he can carry,
"Some envelopes, paper and stamps by the peck
"To notify those who are pains

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

SANTA CLAUS, changing to look out the window of his North Pole office, suddenly gasps: "What's this? What's this?" he cries out. "Can that be Comet?—and Cupid?—and Dasher? Yes! My reindeer have come back!"

"BUT WAIT!" shouts the Good Saint. "Who is this leading them home? Why, my goodness! It's Eski, the little Eskimo child whose bare little Christmas tree last year became decorated with real stars from the sky!"

SANTA dashes with joy out to the Reindeer Corral and lifts Eski high into the air. "Thanks, Little Eski," says Santa, "for bringing my reindeer back! Now I can deliver the gifts for all good children in the world."

ESKI'S REWARD is to make the Big Trip with Santa. So tonight when Santa comes down your chimney to bring your gifts guess who will be holding his sturdy steeds for him? That's right, Eski! (The End)

Surveyors Said To Be Working On Route 23 Near City Limits

Reports that "something's stirring" beneath the strangely quiet surface of the bypass controversy were given new support Tuesday night when it was learned a state highways department surveyors have been working recently just north of Circleville.

Surveyors were said to have been at work last week "just north of the city and all the way down to the corporation line" on Route 23.

The report fitted easily into an unexplained development a few days ago when a highways department worker carried away the aerial photo map being used here in preliminary action on the bypass proposal.

The worker, calling for the map at offices of City Solicitor George Gerhardt, said highways crews were "planning along Route 23 both north and south of the city."

He also added the department was "waiting to see what's decided on the bypass right here in Circleville."

THE IMPORTANT map, essential here in studies on a proposed change in the city's corporation line, was needed by "Mr. Ricketts," he said. Richard Ricketts is an official of the highways department's engineering branch.

He has taken a leading part in talks so far on the state's offer to re-route the main north-south highway here around the western side of Circleville.

Ricketts and other state spokesmen some time ago said they would wait to learn the reaction of property owners to the proposed change in the city limits, required under the state's offer.

Gerhardt has contacted a number of the property owners but only one definite reply to the plan has been received, he said. Container Corp. said it would oppose the bypass route as now drawn, since it would cross a section of the firm's storage yard.

Some of the other property owners have told Gerhardt they're still not satisfied the proposed route has been pinpointed sufficiently by the aerial photo map. And others have been silent altogether.

Strangely enough, it was learned some leaders on both sides in the controversy feel continued delay in decision is working in their behalf.

Residents favoring the bypass indicated belief the state or federal government, or both, will soon begin to exert added pressure here if the matter continues without change much longer. However, those urging the highway be kept on Court street apparently feel that continued delay will tend to discourage the whole bypass plan.

REPORTS of surveyors working along Route 23 near the northern city limits came as a confusing touch for speculation. When pressed some time ago for a definite answer here, state highways department engineers said they favored the bypass route to Court street.

However, the proposed bypass route swings away from the present highway at a point well above the city's northern limits.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

If you're one of the lucky girls who is going to a prep school or college weekend house party, be the kind of guest who rates a second invitation. How? Like this:

1. When you write to your date to accept his invitation ("I'd love to come"), add that you'd appreciate it if he'll let you know what's cooking for the weekend, so you'll bring the right clothes.
2. Wear a suit for travel. Pack all your formal finery for the big dance; a day-length dress and the shoes that go with it; an extra sweater and blouse, socks, comfortable low-heel shoes for daytime. Take a coat, scarf, etc. This gives you an outfit for every need, yet not too much luggage. Let your date know what time your train, plane or bus will arrive, so he can meet you.
3. Pay your fare both ways. After you arrive, all other expenses are his, because you are his guest from arrival to departure.
4. Follow house rules where you stay overnight. It's the girl who has fun without breaking rules who is invited again.
5. Be a good sport and join the fun, but be yourself. He likes you as you are and doesn't want you to smoke or drink or stay out after the campus deadline just because somebody else does.
6. Be sure to thank him afterward and tell him that it was fun. When you're back home, put it in writing—so he'll know you appreciated the big weekend.

Pope Raps Both Communism And Capitalism In Yule Talk

ROME (AP)—Pope Pius XII addressed his 14th annual Christmas plea for peace today to the world's "poor and oppressed" and criticized communism for its attack on Christianity and capitalism for not doing enough to improve man's economic lot.

The modern world, said the pope, faces two difficulties — a difficulty of economics and a difficulty of conscience.

The difficulty of conscience, he continued, is caused by a condemnation of the Christian faith, which has led to the torture of men. This is interpreted as a clear reference to communism and the persecution of the church in the countries communism has conquered.

Turning to economics, the pontiff said much has been done to try to solve the world's unemployment problem, but more must be done. These were his recommendations:

SUPERFLUOUS luxury expenditures should be reduced. Capitalists should put their money into use to aid suffering people rather than holding it in dead deposits. Where private enterprise is inadequate, governments should intervene with public works.

He expressed hope that he would see a reduction in what he described as the disproportionate levels of life between rich and poor individuals and rich and poor nations.

But the pontiff added the hope that this would not be brought about by mere mechanization, for "society is not a machine;" even in the economic field it is not a machine.

Voicing criticism of economic organizations on both "this side and that side" of the ocean—apparently the Communist and non-Communist worlds as well—the pope said industrialism has brought benefits to the people, but it now tends towards an impersonal development of man that tyrannizes the human spirit.

"The technicians of production and organization cannot by themselves create a world without misery," he declared.

Contrary to popular belief, bears are not particularly fond of honey although they often raid beehives to eat the young bees in the combs.

It Doesn't Seem Much Like Christmas To Legless Soldier

TOKYO (AP)—A carol caressed the frosty air outside the Army hospital tonight — Christmas Eve. Lights of a tree blazed in the ward, their brilliance reflected against the yellow cream walls.

Pfc. Glenn Morris lay in bed.

"The trouble with me," he said, "is that pains shoot up and down my legs and my feet burn all the time."

He smiled wanly. That wasn't his trouble at all. He didn't have any legs. A Communist land mine in Korea got his legs.

"I've had five operations," Morris said. "One more, and they'll kill those nerves that make me feel like I still have feet."

Morris fingered a Christmas gift from his mother — a combination pencil and cigaret lighter.

"This really doesn't seem much like Christmas," he said. "It's a lot different from the one I spent in 1950, before I got in the army."

"MY HOME IS in Middletown, Ohio, but I was down in Combs, in his neck."

Now Santa felt better. His mind was at rest.

For Ike and for Harry he wished — all the best.

County Defense Bond Sales Low

Ohio purchases of E and H defense bonds during November showed the first decrease for 1952, compared to sales of E Bonds for the same month last year, and ended 13 consecutive month-by-month sales gains for the state, according to Judge William D. Radcliff, chairman of Pickaway County's defense bond committee.

Sales of E and H Bonds in Pickaway County last month were $43,326, and compare to E Bond sales of $32,041 for November, 1951.

The defense bond office in Columbus pointed out that sales of E Bonds reported during November, 1951, reached a two-and-a-half-month peak, because it marked the final accounting period of the first defense bond drive which was a national promotion with sales quotas. There was no all-out bond drive held during 1952.

Merrill L. Predmore, Ohio's director for the defense bonds division, praised the excellent volunteer effort put behind the state's bond program and emphasized the fact that Ohio sales of E and H bonds probably will show a net gain of over 30 million dollars compared to E Bond Sales in 1951.

Actual dollar sales of Series E and H bonds in the state during November were $22.4 million, and compare to total purchases of E Bonds only in the same month last year of $26.1 million.

CHRISTMAS

ON THIS CHRISTMAS day, with the world torn asunder by war and preparations for war, it might seem to be untimely to give thought to the hope for peace on earth. With human ingenuity devoted almost entirely to contriving weapons of death and destruction, it may appear to the unthinking to border on mockery to sing of good will to men.

Through all wars, and in spite of them, man's hope for peace has persisted. It is the essence of his faith in a Divinity, a faith which has shaped his ends throughout the centuries.

Take from him this hope for peace and man has little remaining to give momentum to his routine of living. Convinced that he could never live in an age of good will, man's zest for living would be lessened immeasurably.

Christmas is a season of mingled joy and sadness. The average human being is buoyed up by a sense of fellowship and at the same time dashed down by a feeling of irreparable loss. For a brief period we love others as ourselves and are unnaturally happy because, unfortunately, selfishness is the normal inclination of man.

During this time, every gift is a token of personal thought, of unselfish interest in the joy of others. We like to see the gleam in the eyes of the child and feel the hand clasp of the adult to whom we have extended good will.

For a few hours we renounce all the stupid enmities, the harshnesses and envies of human relationships and accept the unconquerable efficacy of good will. We grant ourselves a glimpse of Heaven and then slam the door on the splendid vision. For man, in the exercise of his free will, too frequently chooses the baser rather than the richer things.

Christmas vouchsafes us a tiny portion of the fullness of life if we but surrender ourselves to the spiritual teachings of the ages. That is the joy of the season.

On this Christmas day, then, be of good cheer. For peace will come again in a better day yet to be. It is man's heritage, bequeathed to him on that night of nights in Bethlehem, when the angels sang in joyous refrain:

Peace on earth, good will to men.

These Days

The holidays of all peoples are images of their nature. The Saturnalia of the decadent Romans expressed the materialism of a people who had once known the beauties of God's law, but had wandered into a world of physical excitement. The feast of the Maccabees of the Jews expresses the permanence of spirituality of this ancient people, who, no matter how materialism may master the many, always produces its minority of prophets and sages who love God.

Christmas cannot ever be a secular holiday. Christmas, in its material manifestation, may to some mean trees and tinsel, gifts and merchandise. This is only an external expression of a festival, often pagan, often without relationship to the inner soul of its civilization.

For Christmas presents the birthday of Jesus for remembrance—Jesus the rabbi, Jesus the prophet, Jesus the Christ, Jesus the only begotten son of God—depending upon the traditions of one's race. Such a birthday can only manifest itself in adoration of God. For whether one be Christian, Jew, or Moslem, it must be recognized that Jesus of Nazareth, in the land now called Israel, spoke God's word and it was carried to all the corners of the earth.

The spirit of the Old Testament lived in His words—the spirit, the soul, the character of the Torah and the prophets, of the sages and rabbis, of Moses and David, of Isaiah and Hillel.

But the words, of themselves, are never important, for words are only the symbols that men use to speak the thoughts of their minds and to approach, however haltingly, the spirit in their souls.

In the magnificent structure of human virtue, the beatitudes, Jesus hands down to man the whole tradition of the human effort to translate the meaning of God's revelation to man in language. It is with that revelation of the Natural Law that the Judaic-Christian civilization swept over Europe.

The Jews have never been a proselyting people. They associated their faith with themselves and lived within their own world and their own tradition. Paul, however, set out to speak the spirit of this civilization to all mankind and brought it into the declining and confused Roman Empire as a refreshing zephyr. He brought Jesus to Western Europe and arrested the decay which was returning a great people to barbarism. It was this Judaic-Christian concept of life which rescued Europe from paganism.

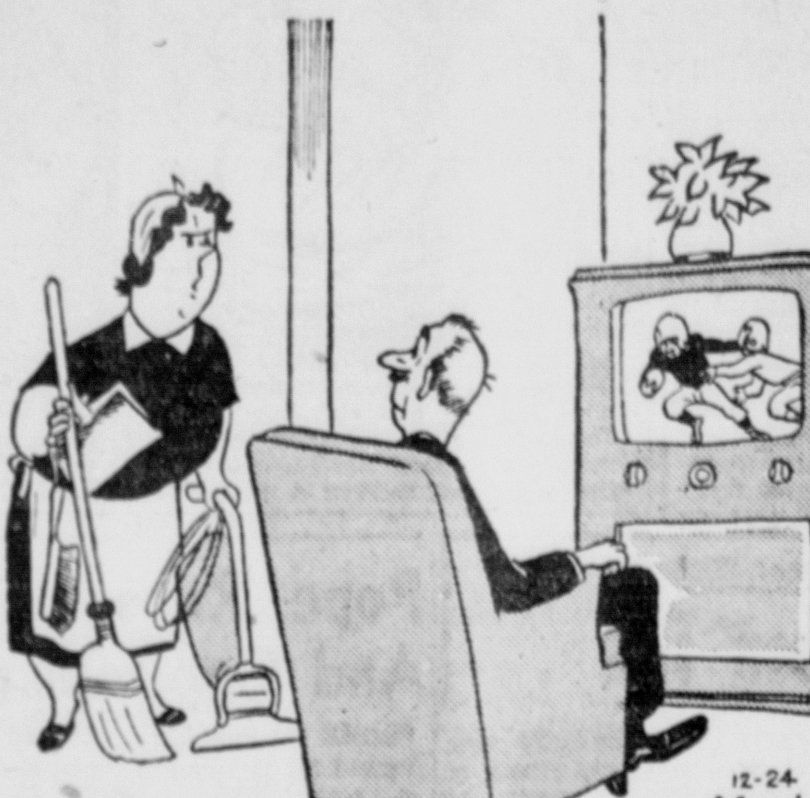

Christmas, then, is the anniversary not only of the birth of Jesus but of the resurrection of our civilization. It is in this spirit that all those who love God, Jew, Christian, Moslem, can pause to think, not in terms of material benefits or of festive gaiety, but in the deep mood of religious reverence.

All the religions whose roots are in Palestinian soil, reject a materialistic concept of man. They all hold that God gave not only life but the "Ruah Hakodesh"—the Holy Spirit to man. And it is this Holy Spirit which is immortal, for it is life.

In the beatitudes, Jesus does not in any place speak of the grandeur of material things; He does not tarnish His words with the meaningless tinsel of things that can be counted. On the contrary, He says:

A Disease of Women That Seems to Be on the Increase

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

The womb is made of tissues that are capable of great change and growth, especially during pregnancy. In one disease of women, however, the type of tissue that lines the womb also starts to grow in other parts of the body. This tissue is known as the endometrium, and the disease in which it is misplaced is called endometriosis.

The misplaced tissue is most often found lying inside the abdomen, in the tissues around the womb, on the ovaries, or on the rectum or large intestine.

Disease on Increase
This disease is far more common than one would believe and seems to be on the increase, occurring most frequently in women between the ages of 31 and 40 years.

It is not cancerous, however, and there is no special danger that it will lead to cancer. The true cause for the disease is not known, although there are many plausible theories to explain it.

Many of the women with this condition have complained of severe pain during and after menstruation. Usually they had difficulty in becoming pregnant. Others, however, have borne children frequently, and in some cases this prevented the spread of the disease.

Endometriosis can also cause bleeding from the rectum and blood in the urine. Backache and rectal pain are also very common.

Surgery Most Successful
Hormones have been used in treating this disease over the years, but in most cases this treatment is not too successful. Usually surgery is the only treatment of any avail. During the operation all the tissue that contains this misplaced endometrium should be removed.

When a woman can bear children, however, the surgeon usually does not remove the organs needed for reproduction. Once the childbearing age is past, removal of all the organs of reproduction that have implanted tissue usually brings permanent relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
V. M. T.: What is an electroencephalograph used for?

Answer: The electroencephalograph is an instrument used for measuring brain waves. It is used to diagnose different types of brain disorders; also to localize certain brain tumors and to measure the amount of damage following brain injury. Sometimes it is employed to determine whether there has been an excessive intake of barbiturate drugs.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

EMILY filed in the morning with trivial tasks; and immediately after luncheon she did over her hair and manicured her nails and changed her dress. In spite of the current trend away from mourning, she had worn black for some time after Roger died, not because she wished to perpetuate an outworn custom, but because it had seemed to her the most natural and suitable thing to do and because it had been in harmony with her own mood. Gradually she had changed into soft grays and lavenders, colors again, and she chose a green dress which was especially becoming, and which she felt sure David would like. He had once told her that she looked like the personification of spring, when he had found her in her little garden, wearing a green dress.

The dress she put on now was not unlike the one she had worn that spring afternoon so long before.

It seemed long to Emily.

"Major Salomont, Mrs. Field."

She hastened forward, both hands outstretched in welcome, calling his name in a glad voice. She had expected that he would take her in his arms as soon as the doors closed behind the butler, but this time she was more than ready for the anticipated embrace. Instead, David clasped her outstretched hands in his, firmly rather than carelessly, and regarded her with smiling approval without drawing her closer to him.

"Emily, how lovely you look! I never saw you when you were half so beautiful!"

"You look wonderful to me, David. But of course you would, anyhow."

"And of course you would, anyhow. But you really are a great deal more beautiful than when I left. And what a charming dress! My imagination isn't playing me tricks this time, either, is it?"

"You mean about the dress?"

"Yes. It reminds me of one you were wearing the first afternoon I came to your garden on Joy Street, the one I told you made you seem like the embodiment of spring."

"I didn't think you'd remember. But I thought of that myself—the similarity, I mean."

"You haven't asked me to sit down yet, you know."

"Oh! I'm terribly sorry! Of course. . . I like this sofa, don't you? . . . Now start at the beginning and tell me everything."

She spoke with great cordiality, but with some confusion. All the time they had been standing, facing each other with clasped hands.

but at arm's length, she had been waiting, from one moment to the next, for him to fold her in a fond embrace, to tell her how much he loved her and to invite the response which would have been so immediate. It had made her happy to know that he thought she was beautiful, it was gratifying to find that he had remembered the other green dress and that he had noticed her diamonds; few men would have been so observing. But this did not fill her with rapture as the expected kisses and the murmured words of endearment would have done. Even the statement that he had come to see her, that all other meetings were secondary to this one, seemed to lack the ardor for which she had yearned. She felt both bewildered and frustrated, and she was not sure she had been able to conceal this, when she so belatedly invited David to be seated, after he himself had suggested it. Her feeling of bewilderment increased as he settled himself at one end of the sofa, with the obvious expectation that she would ensconce herself at the other.

"That's rather a large order, isn't it?" he inquired, picking up the thread of the conversation. "You know a good deal already, from my letters."

"Not nearly as much as I'd like to. Of course for a long while then, they haven't contained much detail. . . . Naturally, I know they couldn't," she added hastily. "I realize you haven't had time to write long letters. Also, that there are lots of things it's easier and better to say than to write."

"Yes, there are. Those are the things I want to concentrate on now. . . . Is it all right if I smoke?"

"Of course I should have suggested that right away too. And I'm sorry I can't offer you a cigarette from your favorite cloisonne box. It's in storage but I'm going to get it out almost immediately—that and a lot of my other things. I'll have it for you in a day or two."

She smiled, determined, now that she had recovered from the first shock of his unexpected behavior, to show no more confusion and, above all, to betray no surprise or disappointment. Of course there was some explanation, which would soon be forthcoming; he must have something on his mind so important that, until he had unburdened himself, he could not be in the mood for love-making. She looked at him confidently, waiting for him to go on.

"Don't bother about the box. I remember that, too, and it was a collector's item. But I can enjoy a cigarette just as much if I take it right out of my own case."

"I don't wonder. It's a beauty."

"Yes. It's a present. I've become rather attached to it."

Instinctively, she put out her hand, supposing that he meant her to take it in order that she might inspect it more closely and admire it more discerningly. Instead, he replaced it in his pocket.

"Of course you realized it was a great blow to me when I found I wasn't going into Normandy over the beaches," he began. "But, as it turned out, I can't be thankful enough I went in with Patton instead. If I could have chosen what I'd do in this war, it would have been exactly what I did do—tear through France and straight on into Germany, ripping everything out of the way as I went. There's never been anything in history to equal that campaign and probably there never will be again. I'm glad I'll be able to tell my grandchildren that I saw all of it and that I was part of it."

"I know how you feel. And I think I know why you feel that way, too, David."

"Well, thank God for that. I hoped I wouldn't have to explain."

"But you don't have to tell me about that, honestly you don't."

"Yes, I do. That's what I came here for."

"Why of course it isn't! You've come here because—"

"She must not be the one to say it first. Until he had done so, she could not say, 'You've come here because you love me and I love you, because there's no impediment any more to our love, because we're free to express it in every way.' She waited for him to say this and instead, he said something else."

"I've come here to tell you that I saw Priscilla in Wiesbaden."

"For a moment Emily found that, strangely enough, she could not seem to answer. When she did so, she hoped and believed that her voice sounded not only natural but casual."

"Why, of course you must have! You didn't mention it in your letters and, as far as I know, Priscilla didn't mention it in hers. She doesn't write to me, but she does write to Grandmamma, occasionally."

"I saw a good deal of Priscilla, Emily."

"Well, I'm very glad. I'm sure you must have found her good company. Priscilla's quite amusing, when she's in the mood."

"Emily, I know you're not consciously making this harder for me. But what I've been trying to tell you—in fact, what I came here on purpose to tell you—is that I fell in love with Priscilla."

Try, Stop Me

The Arkansas Baptist passes on the story of a man who halted his car at a crossroads and yelled to a farmer driving a load of hay, "Hi, there, Cornsilk, is this the way to Calgary?" The farmer looked up in feigned astonishment, and exclaimed, "By heck, stranger, how did you know my name was Cornsilk?" "I guessed it," said the motorist. "Then, if you're so goldurned smart," concluded the farmer, as he drove on, "Guess your way to Calgary."

Florence Chadwick, the channel swimmer, was recognized at a Hollywood night club and called upon to say a few words. When she stepped to the mike, she suffered an attack of stage fright, and gazed mutely at the audience. From the rear came a helpful suggestion: "Cheer up, kid! Swim something!"

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—The shocking racketeering conditions along the nation's waterfront, which involve bribery of public officials, graft payments to union leaders, criminally inspired strikes and murders, could have been eradicated long ago by federal prosecution, if strong action by Washington had not been deemed politically inadvisable and dangerous.

Every attorney general for the last twenty years has been urged to undertake an investigation of the tieup among gangsters, politicians, longshoremen union bosses and the steamship companies.

It was suggested that the Kefauver Committee turn its inquiry in this direction, when it questioned Mayor Ambassador O'Dwyer about his failure to break up Murder Incorporated and its waterfront allies, the Anastasia brothers.

IN FAIRNESS—Largely for political reasons, the Department of Justice preferred to look the other way. In fairness to the Kefauver Committee, it should be noted that its funds and its term of authority were running out when it stumbled on this situation.

Interestingly enough, Rudolph Halley, chief Kefauver counsel

and now president of the New York City Council, has proposed numerous reforms of a local nature to break the criminals' and the politicians' domination of the docks.

INDIFFERENCE—The reasons for federal indifference to these underworld activities are plain. Almost every official, political fixer and union leader involved was a Democratic stalwart, who delivered the votes of his gang and his district on Election Day.

National revulsion over the revelations, which are now being brought out by the New York State and New Jersey Crime Commissions, would have reacted against the party in power more violently than did 1950-1952 disclosures of the scandalous "mess at Washington" in last month's voting.

Indeed, had Governor Dewey been able to exploit them in 1948 he might have defeated Harry S. Truman.

PROBLEM—Criminal conditions along the nation's waterfront, including the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Coasts, are a national rather than a local problem and scourge, according to leading lawyers. In their opinion, there is no question of Federal jurisdiction over this important area.

It has been estimated, for instance, that these racketeering activities increase the annual cost of handling imports and exports at the port of New York alone by $350 million. The sum would probably be doubled or tripled, if depredations of a similar nature at other great harbors are included in the total.

TRIBUTE—This is the tribute which gangsters, politicians and a few influential labor czars exact from manufacturers, shippers, purchasers and consumers of the many billions of dollars worth of goods that are loaded or unloaded at these centers of commerce.

Ironically, a great part of this additional cost is borne by the United States government, for it is imposed on shipments of food, weapons and other supplies to our armed forces overseas and to our NATO allies.

Not even the Barbary pirates in the Mediterranean, against whom the young nation waged its first foreign war, took such a toll from the American people in the early years of the 19th century.

WEAPON—The anti-gangster weapon, always available in the Federal armory for attacking

Yuletide Program Is Presented By Fellowship Group

Parents and friends were guests when members of the Westminster Fellowship of the Presbyterian church met in the church Sunday evening for their annual Christmas program.

The stage was decorated to represent a living room, complete with a lighted fireplace and Christmas tree. The program was presented informally in this setting.

Ann Adkins gave a piano solo and a string trio composed of Donna Mitchell, violin, Becky Dountz, cello and Ann Adkins on the piano, presented a program of French, Welsh and German carols.

The Christmas story was given by Barbara Schumm and Kay Graef, and a male quartet composed of Don Davis, Larry Thornton, Newell Stevenson, and Robert Moeller, sang carols.

Younger members of the class entered as carolers and were joined by the rest in singing.

Refreshments were served with Elizabeth Stevenson as hostess and Linda and Lissa Given presiding at the punch bowl.

Piano music was played throughout the social hour by Mary Ann Edstrom and Phyllis McCoard.

Sunshine Class Names Officers

Sunshine Class of the Ashville Evangelical United Brethren church held a Christmas party in the Wardell Party Home recently.

A turkey dinner was served, after which a short business meeting was held and officers elected. Officers are Frances Grant, president; Pearl Fortner, secretary; Valerie White, treasurer, and Medtrid Ecard, corresponding secretary.

Christmas carols were sung and a gift exchange was held around the Christmas tree.

Moffitt Home Scene Of Party

Mr. and Mrs. James Moffitt of E. Franklin St. entertained a group of friends Tuesday evening in their home.

Invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Duntun of Greenfield, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. James Adams of Altavista, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paul of Dallas, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Duntun Jr. Miss Florence Duntun, Miss Winifred Parrett, Miss Mary Heffner, Mrs. Alice Moeller and Lewis Holtermann.

Yule Party Given For Fifth Grade

A Christmas party was held Monday for the fifth grade students of High St. school. Mrs. Marguerite Weiler is teacher of the class.

Games and contests were conducted, refreshments were served and a gift exchange was held.

Refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Forrest Brown, Mrs. Nolan Sims Jr. and Mrs. Herbert Hamel.

If your house plants require sunlight and it's a cloudy day, place them near a 100-watt bulb, but not too close or they may get burned.

Franklin School Yule Program Given By Pupils

Franklin St. school windows were decorated with red candles and snow flakes and the rooms were decorated with Christmas trees, bells and holly for the Christmas program presented by the students to their parents and friends, Monday afternoon.

A large tree was placed in the hall, around which the students assembled for the program. Each participant wore a white collar.

"It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," and "O Come All Ye Faithful," were sung, after which Mrs. Ward's first grade sang, "Christmas Bells" and "Christmas Stockings."

Other selections were "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "The First Noel," "O Come Little Children" by Mrs. Johnson's first grade and "Santa's Coming," and "Jingle Bells" by both first grades. "Up on the House Top," was presented by all the students and Mrs. Blackburn's second grade sang three numbers.

All students sang, "Joy to the World," and "White Christmas," and Miss Updyke's third grade sang "Happy Christmas Day," and "Santa's Reindeer Wear Bright Bells." The school pupils sang, "Rudolph the Rednose Reindeer," and two numbers were given by the fourth grade taught by Mrs. Ullman and Mrs. Kifer entitled, "In Bethlehem One Night," and "I Saw Three Ships." The solo part was sung by Billy Wyatt.

After all the students sang "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town," "A Merry Christmas" and "Willie Claus," were sung by Mrs. Walton's fifth grade. "Deck the Hall," was followed by "Christmas Lullaby," and "On a Winter Morning," by Mrs. Pritt's fifth grade. "Song of the Infant Jesus," was given by Mrs. Webb's sixth grade and Dick Gerhardt read the Christmas story from St. Luke.

A playlet was given by Mrs. Walton's fifth grade and included in the cast were Mary Lou Brown, David Huffer, Sharon Thompson, Harold Arledge, Linda Price, Cindy Hanley, Phyllis Ullman, Minerva Heeter, Cheryl Evans and Rosalee McCall.

The party was in charge of Mrs. Harry Barthelmas and Mrs. James P. Shea, co-chairmen, assisted by three room mothers for each room. Santa Claus visited the kindergarten and the first and second grade rooms.

Monrovia Club Has Home Show

Members of the Monrovia Garden Club held a Christmas Home show, Sunday evening.

The decorated homes were visited by a group of seventy-two members of Monrovia, Commercial Point and Soliqua Garden Clubs.

'Red Candles' Presented By School Pupils

"Red Candles," an operetta, was presented recently by students in the Washington Township school.

The cast was composed of Betty Lou Leist as Gilda Nansen; Bobby Bowman, Jibby; Mary Louise Streber, Mabel; Shelby Beavers, Spirit of Christmas; Jerry Leist, Santa Claus;

Bob McCain, Lawyer Snidge; Donald Leist, Teddy; Karen Rase, Milly; Norma Cupp, Celia; Rosemary Lowery, Mary; Martha Streber, Patsy; Jimmy Justice, Snowflake; and Wilma Weaver, Janet Weaver and Juanita Hinton, waits.

The first grade boys and girls were toy soldiers, second grade rhythm band, third and fourth grade girls, fairies and the boys were gnomes. Fifth and sixth grade students made up the chorus.

"The Christmas Story" was given by the seventh and eighth grade chorus with Ted Young as narrator.

Open House Fetes Hospital Staff

Mrs. Mark Huckeriede of 125 Seyfert Ave. was hostess Tuesday afternoon with open house for the staff of Berger hospital.

Approximately 15 guests called between the hours of 1 to 3 p. m. and from 3 to 5 p. m.

The refreshment table was centered with a white floral arrangement and miniature green Christmas tree favors were given each guest.

Mrs. Huckeriede presided at the punch bowl.

Hollar-Leets Marriage Read

Mr. and Mrs. William Hollar of near Washington C. H. are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Rosemary, to Airman 1-c George D. Leets, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leets of near Williamsport.

The Rev. Hugh D. Liggett officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p. m. Dec. 18, in the Frankfort Methodist church.

The bride wore a royal-blue gabardine suit with black accessories. Miss Lorraine McGown and Miles Snyder were the attendants.

The former Miss Hollar attended Frankfort high school. Airman Leets attended Williamsport high school before entering the service in 1948. The bride is staying with her parents until her husband's discharge on Dec. 30th.

Kingston Canteen Officers Named

Ronald Leadingham was elected president of the Teenage Canteen of Kingston when the young people met at the high school. Others named to office are John Kreisel, vice president, Doug Paxton, secretary, and Irwin Dresbach, treasurer.

The canteen plans to open on Jan. 3 at the high school.

A New Year's Eve watch party is being arranged for all young people interested in the canteen. It will be held at the high school following church services at the Kingston Methodist church.

Refreshments will be furnished and entertainment will include dancing.

Children's Home Scene Of Party Given By Kiwanis

Twenty members of the Circleville Kiwanis Club were present for the Christmas party given in the Children's Home, Monday evening, for 34 children.

Santa Claus, portrayed by Don Jenkins, distributed gifts to each child from Kiwanis and Budd Linn showed a series of cartoon movies. Candy was also distributed.

Committee in charge of the party was Dr. Ray Carroll, chairman, Truman Eberly, Robert Wilson and Jack Heeler.

College Prexy's Disapprove Of Post-Season Bowl Games

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A majority of college presidents have reported their disapproval of football bowl games.

This was reported Tuesday in a study of post-season competition, undertaken by the Extra Events Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The survey showed a strong majority of the nation's educational and athletic administrators, as well as the athletes and student leaders, approve of "properly controlled and administered" post-season athletic events—with the college presidents taking exception on the football bowl games.

The presidents were asked to report their institutional policy and 31 per cent of the 156 responding college presidents approved bowl games while 53 per cent reported disapproval.

AMONG the presidents whose teams have participated in such bowls, however, 45.6 per cent approved such competition and 35 per cent disapproved.

"It is significant data," the Extra Events Committee said, "that the majority of college presidents disapprove of post-season bowl games."

The survey was a tribute to Coach Orzle Cowles' inspired Minnesota charges who turned the trick by out-rebounding the taller Illini and by skillfully executing ingenious defenses set to check the Illini near the basket.

The failure of the Illinois first stringers to turn in their top performances aided the Gophers. In fact, it was the ball-hawking and shooting of the Illini reserves in the last 15 minutes of play that kept their team in contention.

Minnesota held Illinois' 6 foot 9 center, John Kerr, to five points and he was forced to score one of his two field goals from the outside. Kerr previously had a 21.3 average per game for three contests.

Chuck Mencil took over the Big Ten all-game scoring lead with a total of 77 points as a result of his 18 point production. He now has a 19.2 average for four games.

LOS ANGELES—Jesus Fuentes, 158, Los Angeles, stopped Nick Moran, 156, Mexico City, 5.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—George Benton, 152, Philadelphia, outpointed Charlie Joseph, 154, New Orleans, 10.

Stoutsville's reserve team completed the evening satisfactorily for the Indian fans, leveling the Pickerington subs by a 36-33 count. Box score of the varsity game follows:

Seattle Cager Near All-Time Scoring Mark

Amazing John O'Brien
Needs Single Point To
Set College Record

NEW YORK (AP)—The next point the amazing John O'Brien scores for the Seattle basketball team will give him a new four-year record for college basketball.

The point-scoring prodigy, the first collegian to top the 1,000 mark in one season, contributed 29 points to Seattle's 102-101 victory over New York University last night and now is tied with Nate DeLong, who scored 2,592 points for River Falls (Wis.) Teachers College.

From there it's only a short hop for the agile O'Brien to the career record of 2,902 set by DeLong in five years.

Thus, Johnny once again takes the headlines away from his twin brother Eddie, his teammate ever since they first started tossing a basketball around in their native South Amboy, N. J. Eddie scored 33 points, including two vital foul shots at the end, and was at least equally as important as his more publicized brother to the team's victory.

BUT IT WAS only another contradiction in the career of the twins who went to a college 3,000 miles from home on baseball scholarships. That's right, baseball—Coach Al Brightman got the scholarships for them after seeing them perform in the National Semi-Pro Baseball Tourney in Wichita, Kan.

"Pro basketball would be nice, but I'm really more interested in baseball," Johnny said last night. "I'm an infielder and Eddie's an outfielder. We both bat and hit right-handed, but I once pitched a softball game left-handed."

He didn't discuss any pro offers, but it's reported the Pittsburgh Pirates are definitely interested.

Last night's victory, scored before 12,752 who saw the highest-scoring game in the 19 years of college basketball in Madison Square Garden, was a triumphal return engagement for the O'Briens. When they played in the National Invitation Tournament last spring, a large delegation of family and friends came over from Jersey but Holy Cross turned back Seattle, 78-73. Johnny got 21

Brown Shuns Needle From Lions' Pilot

CLEVELAND (AP)—Coach Paul Brown had a terse "no comment" today to a long range dig at him from Detroit by Lions Coach Buddy Parker.

Brown, said Parker, is trying to make his Cleveland Browns "underdogs" for Sunday's pro football championship game with the Lions by inferring the Browns are in poor shape.

Parker also said that Brown was "harping" about injuries, "old men" on his team, and "rustiness" from a two-week layoff.

In the last week or so, Brown has been complaining about injuries to such key players as halfback Duke Jones and end Mac Speedie. He still insisted today, "Frankly we're not counting on them."

As for "old men," the Browns have nine players who have been with the team since it was established in 1946. Brown has been known to defend them, in spite of their age, as better than "a lot of younger men I know."

These "nine old men" are:

Quarterback Otto Graham, fullback Marion Motley, offensive ends Dante Lavelli and Speedie, defensive end George Young, tackle Lou Groza, guards Lin Houston and Bill Willis, center Frank Gatski.

Chandler Dickers For Baseball Job

NEW YORK (AP)—There is a chance that A. B. (Happy) Chandler may be back in organized baseball—as managing director of the San Francisco Club of the Pacific Coast League. Negotiations between Paul Fagan, owner of the Seas, and the former baseball commissioner have been resumed after having been broken off two weeks ago.

At the time, Fagan had offered Chandler $25,000 a year to take charge of the Seas, with Fagan retaining the ownership. Chandler was willing to accept the post, but asked for a five-year contract instead of the two-year pact offered by Fagan. Happy argued it would require that time to rebuild points, but 15 were on foul shots as Holy Cross held Johnny to three field goals.

New Health Council Could Be 'Clearing House' For Aid

System Is Outlined By W. J. Treece

Suggested Plan Would Eliminate Duplication Here

A relatively new system which would hold duplication to a minimum in medical aid for needy cases will probably be urged as a project for Pickaway County Health Council.

The proposal was recently outlined by W. J. Treece, field secretary for the Ohio Society for Crippled Children, during a visit here to address the society's local unit.

He emphasized it was merely a suggestion that "may prove interesting" to members of the newly-formed health group.

Among top items of business scheduled for discussion when the Health Council meets next month in Circleville will be projects considered worthy of the organization's support and within its range of policy.

Under the arrangement described by Treece, the Health Council would operate "as sort of a clearing house" for plans to extend medical aid to needy individuals in Pickaway County, both children and adults. He outlined how the setup operates while relating its success in other communities.

"IT SEEMS to be a highly beneficial arrangement," he said, "both from the standpoint of the people giving the aid and of the people receiving it. It gives maximum effect to the civic-minded efforts in any community by making sure that one case isn't helped from two or three directions while another case unknowingly is being ignored."

"A number of counties and single communities are already using the plan and its success seems general. It may prove interesting to Pickaway County's new health organization, especially since I understand the council is off to such a good beginning with far-sighted and progressive policies to direct its course."

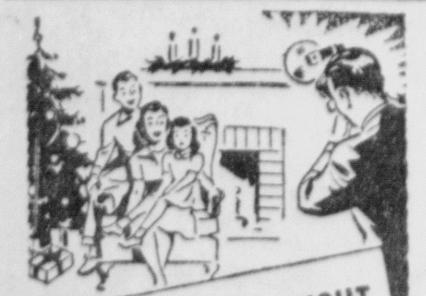

Treece said he was not prepared to give a detailed suggestion as to how the plan could be worked in this county, and added:

"The exact ways and means, after all, would be in the field of the council's own decision. There would be a problem or two to solve here, but it's very likely your organization may decide to give the plan a trial."

Among apparent problems, Treece admitted, would be the manner in which a central unit could be maintained by the health group so that it could handle queries from time to time throughout the year. Such queries would be directed to the council when some person or community group desired to extend medical aid to an individual who lacks the means of paying for expensive aid—equipment for the handicapped, minor surgery, medical attention, and so forth.

The council, through some permanent file or representative authorized to check by telephone, would then survey the relatively few number of organizations that may be already giving aid to the same individual in Pickaway County. Results of this checkup, in turn, would be relayed back to the person or group that made the query, thus revealing in advance where duplication would result.

EVEN ASIDE from its effect against duplication of effort and contributed funds, Treece pointed out, the plan would have other benefits. For example, it would speed help for urgent cases and also would very likely disclose impor-

Ohio is the nation's second leading farm state in "percentage of farms on electricity power lines." Of Ohio's 199,359 farms, 195,650 or 98.1 per cent, are on power lines. The national percentage is 86.5.

Only Indiana, with 99.4 percent of its 166,627 farms on power lines, is ahead of Ohio in the farm-state classification. Connecticut and Washington, which are not classified as farm states, have 99.9 percent of their farms on lines. A report also shows that the "east-northeast" section of the nation, which includes Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, is the leading farm-electrified section. That area, which contains 18.4 percent of the nation's farms, is 96.6 percent electrified.

New Recruiter Assigned Here

M-Sgt. Sheridan M. Pyle of the Lancaster recruiting station has been assigned to temporarily take over Pickaway County's Air Force and Army recruiting station in the Veterans of Foreign War post in Circleville.

Sgt. Pyle is replacing Sfc. Dennis Bonifant, who is being transferred overseas after the holidays.

The local recruiting office will be open for enlistments every Monday from 9:30 a. m. until 4 p. m.

but not the full story!

UNTIL YOU READ these words you might not guess that this is a school corridor during a recent air-raid drill.

Until you read further you might not realize that this is only one brief moment . . . one small aspect . . . of a much bigger story.

A whole city was involved in the drill! But what city? When? What else happened? What were the headaches? The satisfactions? What did the people say and do? What did the mayor say? The Army?

A picture, a headline, a brief announcement can whet your appetite for news, but cannot satisfy your hunger for the whole story.

It takes many words to bring you all you want to know. Words bring meaning, words bring news. Newspapers bring news.

Only the newspaper brings you full stories day after day—pictures and sufficient words. Only the newspaper can bring you the full story as soon as your appetite is aroused. Fast, without delay.

• This goes for advertising, too. The brief message that hangs in the air . . . or the brief headlines here or there . . . may indeed have a momentary interest.

But the newspaper ad carries the brass-tacks quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself.

Like a news item, the ad can be examined and re-examined. Can be read any time. Anywhere. Can be clipped and carried in a pocket or pocketbook.

And just as the newspaper speaks the special language of the town it mirrors, the ads themselves have the same important local quality. No other medium can match this quality.

Add to all this the fact that newspapers reach everybody in town, and you know why the newspaper is the nation's most powerful advertising medium.

No wonder all advertisers—both retail and "national"—invest more money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"
